

59

Argyll Street London
10th July 1823

48

My dear Sir

I have had the gratification of receiving your letter of 1st Instth and am glad to learn that you continue to entertain the good intention of visiting England this summer.

I have delayed my answer a few days to inquire and confirm my recollection concerning the libraries to which you will have occasion to resort.

The library of the British Museum certainly is shut for the months of the time which you propose to pass here. But I do not think there are any manuscripts there, which you would wish to consult: none Sanscrit, besides a copy of the Vedas.

The library of the Royal Society contains some which you will want to see. It is not regularly open during vacation: but I can undertake that you may have access.

Most of the Manuscripts, to which you would desire to refer, are in the Library of the East

183