

arrange it with Mr L. Sir Alexander. Jonathan is still a little undetermined: but I think will take the advantage of the opportunity to let his tea go at the same time instead of waiting till Easter. If you beg to be allowed to reimburse the extra charge which may attend receiving one of the boys before the other.

I have been examining the book which you sent me with at the Ladies House entitled Percheletria bearing the name of doentabhatta for its author. It turns out to be an abridgement of that work, & its proper title, as given in the epigraphs of the several chapters, is Catharanta-nidhi.

A translation of the Percheletria itself has been lately put into my hands. It is by a gentleman whom I know in India, & who died here a few ~~ago~~ years ago. I hope to have his father's permission to publish it. It is well enough done; & then are translations of other Sanscrit works, by the same hands, which I hope will see the light likewise.
I am Dear Sir
with great esteem
Yours very truly
