My dear Sir

I have much to apologise to you for the length of time which has elapsed since I last had the pleasure of writing to you. I should hardly know how to excuse myself, if I had not Mr Lapon's letter = many to appeal to, that I have been busy in your country, you & know you consider the advancement of Sanscrit Literature in that light. Even now I have been able to snatch from preparing avocations & since I have been devoted to the Mimāṃsā. I have scribbled the usual summer excursions to it, and have been nearly all the summer in town, and I have still many months hard work in prospect before I can arrange the plan on which I shall give to the public a summary of = sidered any account of that branch of Hindou philosophy
