

72

Myll Street,
18 April 1827

65

Dear Sir

I have been truly glad to receive your long expected letter; & to learn that avocations chiefly have been the cause of my not hearing sooner from you.

The balance of account will be paid into the hands of Casanova forthwith, to your credit.

I do not doubt that the works which you mention will be very interesting & I shall look with some degree of impatience to see them. The terminating fasciculus of the 1st vol. of Transactions of the
A. Asiatic Society will be out in a week or two; when I shall have the pleasure of forwarding it to you. It contains two essays of mine on Indian Philosophy. My concluding essay (the subject of which is the Vedānta) is now in course of reading at the Society's meetings.

My health, I am sorry to say, continues