

conducted successfully by an enterprizing and scientific Officer, and as opening to the European public a large tract of country hitherto unknown, but connected geographically and politically with the frontiers of the Indian, Persian, and Russian Empires.

Colonel Leake has in the press a new Edition of his "Topography of Athens," which will contain much new and important matter, the result of the late discoveries consequent upon the improvements and rebuilding of that city.

I have the honor to subscribe myself,
with the highest consideration,

Sir,

Your very obed.<sup>t</sup> humble Serv<sup>t</sup>.
