Paris April 2. 1834.

My dear Sir.

Allow me to introduce to you the bearer of this my son Charles Thomas Wilson and to request for him your occasional notice and advice during his residence of some few months at Bonn. He has just obtained the prize of a Scholarship for classical attainments at Harrow I should in consequence join one of our Universities but in the College at Oxford to which I have attached him he cannot be admitted until October next and I know of no better mode of occupying the interval than the study of German. a knowledge of which is indispensable to the scholar and advantageous to every
