Dear Sir

You will perhaps not have forgotten an Englishman by name Wordsworth who along with his friend Mr Coleridge had a few years ago the honor of making your acquaintance at Mr Aders's of Godschberg and of visiting you at your own house in Bonn.
Upon the strength of his acquaintance slight as to my regret, it is, I have ventured to introduce to you Dr James Ross a young English Physician, who is travelling upon the Continent for the purpose of completing his medical education.
He will make such a stay at Bonn
