

As I am ^{an} utter stranger to you Sir = = Sonally, and know you only, as many others of my Country men do, through the medium of your ^{writings}, I feel that every apology is due in addressing you thus familiarly. — The object however which I have in view, will I trust, prove a sufficient excuse for my bold informality. — My intention then, Sir, for some time past has been to make the works of your Regrett'd brother, as well as your own, better known, as they deserve to be, in this Country. — For the furtherance of this object I have taken the liberty of requesting, you would have the goodness to forward me copies of the works mentioned
