Berlin 25 Dec. 1798

I was duly favour'd with your obliging letter of the 26 Nov^r and have just received the copy of the number, in which such flattering mention is made of my translations. I was very wrong in having been so impatient; I am quite ashamed of it, and ask the conductors of the journals pardon for the injustice I did them, in supposing I was neglected. To you, Sir, I owe more thanks than I am able to express. — I accept your kind offer of noticing any further productions of mine; I shall soon have occasion to trouble you, and, in the mean while, I request you to be so good
