

1690

LXXI

Faint, mostly illegible handwritten text in a cursive script, possibly Latin or German. The text is written on aged, yellowed paper and appears to be a single column of writing. Some words are partially legible, such as "LXXI" and "LXXII".

Fragment of handwritten text from the adjacent page, including words like "Nobilitate", "virtute", "honorum", "pure cla", "honoris a", "auere", "ind", "Meor au", "et ex m", "rationis", "nisi in", "Non", "primu", "ration", "etiam", "et in", "locum", "viam", "primu", "videl", "verbum", "mea, ha", "facile vo".