- BAKER, S. W., the Nile tributaries of Abyssinia, and the sword hunters of the Hamram Arabs. 8. London, Macmillan. Cloth 21 s.
In the author's previous work The Albert N'yaaza, published in 1866, he gave an account of the equatorial lake system from which the Nile derives its source. The present work is described by him as a description of twelve months' exploration, during which he examined every individual river which is tributary to the Nile. Sir Samuel Baker was accompanied throughout his wanderings by Lady Baker, and much of the work is devoted to their adventures. The volume contains a number of full-page illustrations, including portraits and maps.
