

How largely this edition is based on the foundations laid by many generations of Greek scholars will be evident on every page. My indebtedness to Prof. G. Vitelli of Florence, however, calls for special acknowledgement. His collation of the Laurentian MS., to say nothing of the discussions in his Osservazione, or his edition of the tragedy, have been of constant and invaluable assistance to me.

I also here take the opportunity of expressing my gratitude to Monsignor Ciccolini, the Chief Librarian of the Vatican Library, for the facilities which he with great courtesy afforded me for collating the Palatine MS.: as well as to Prof. J. Strachan of this College, for his kindness in reading through my proof-sheets. But for the suggestive criticisms of the latter, and, I must add, but for the vigilant supervision of the authorities of the Cambridge University Press, this book would be far more imperfect than it is.

E. B. ENGLAND.

THE OWENS COLLEGE,
June, 1891.