

Handwritten text, possibly a title or page number, appearing faintly in the center of the page. The text is mirrored, suggesting bleed-through from the reverse side of the leaf. The words are difficult to decipher but appear to be arranged in two lines.