

the knights of the shire, on behalf of the lace-makers, to present to the king a pair of fine lace ruffles, made by Messrs. Milward and

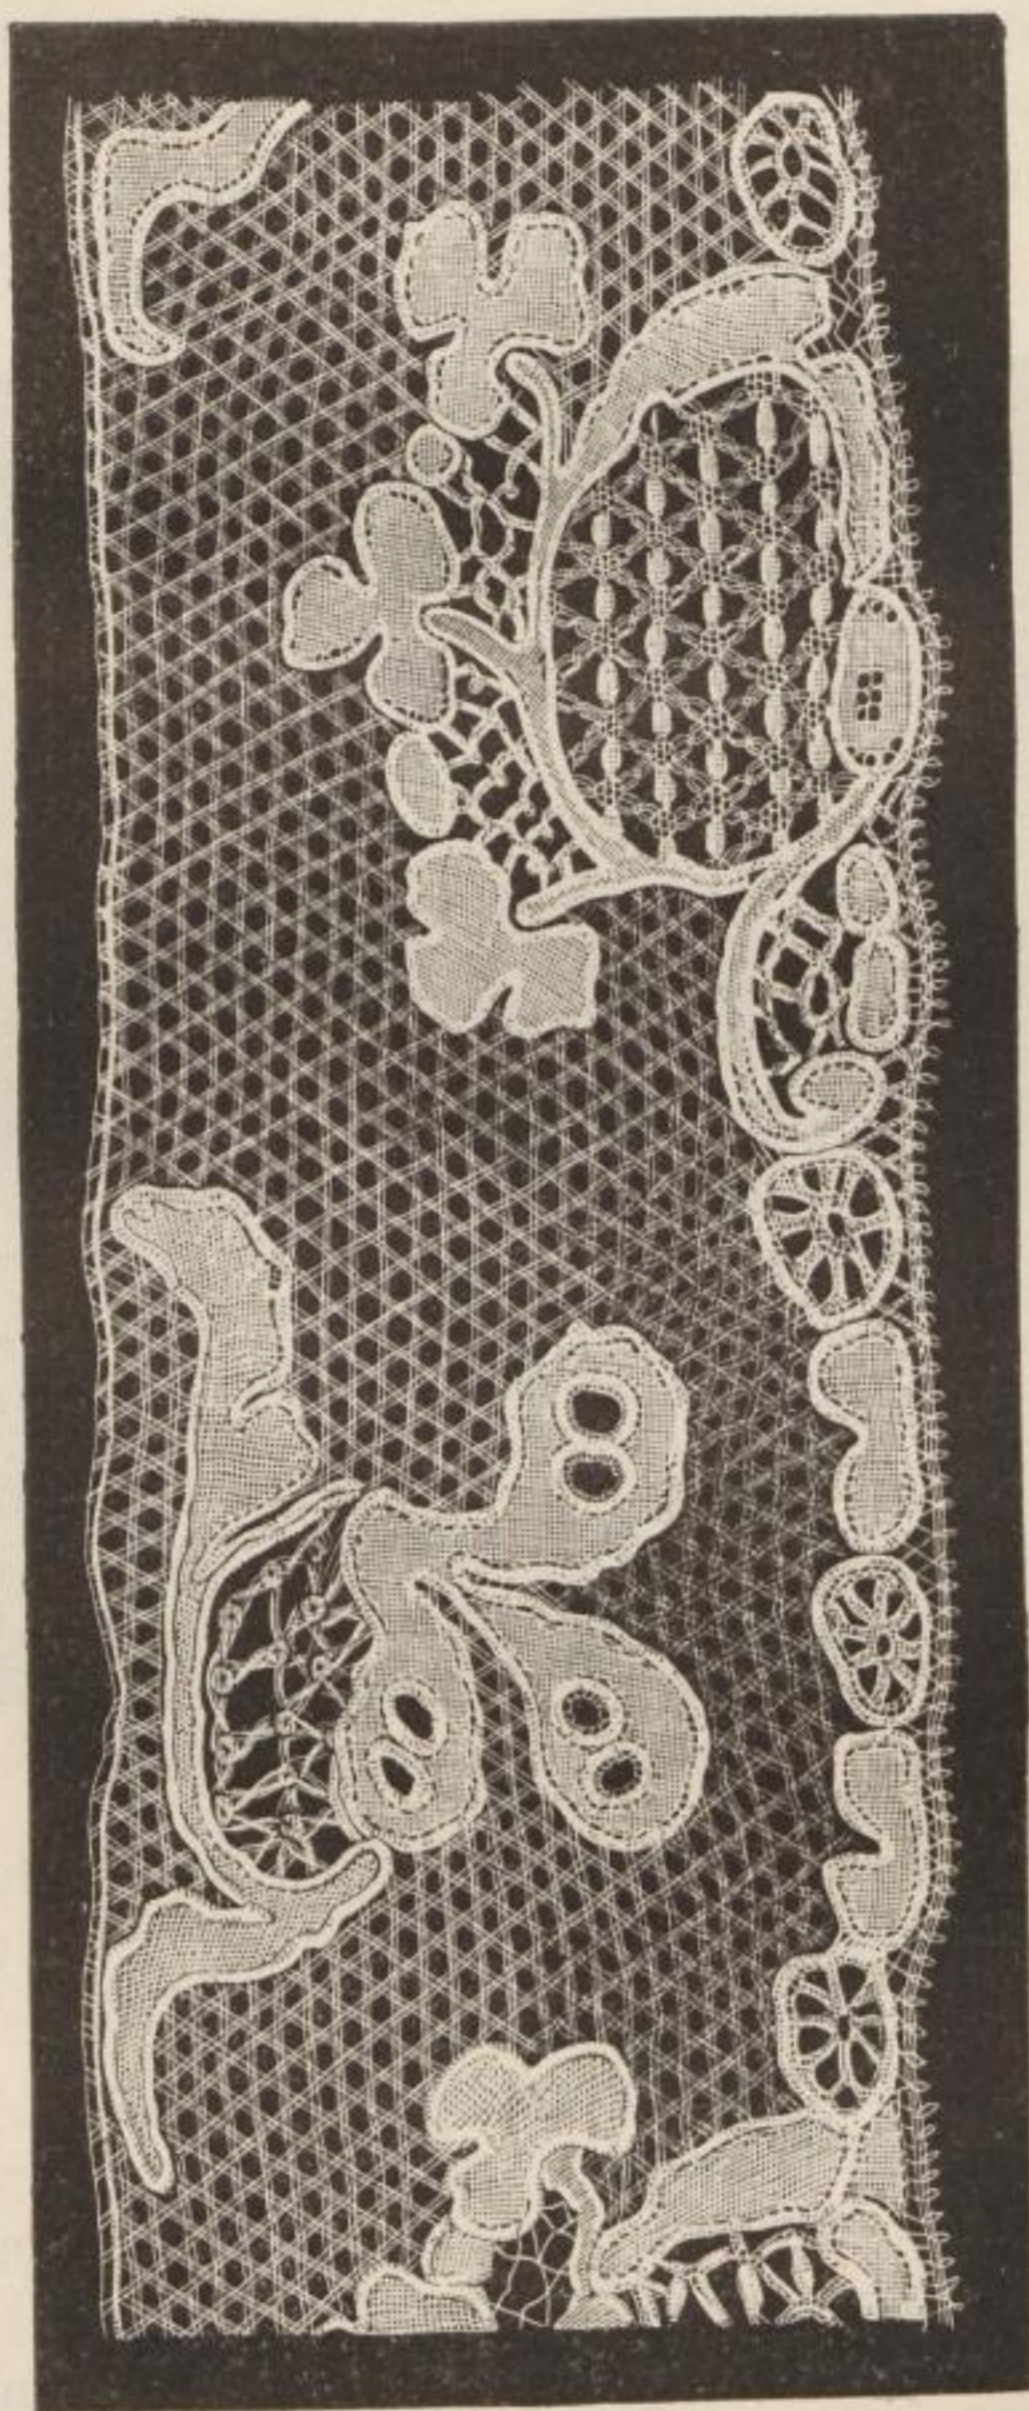

Fig. 119.

Buckinghamshire trolly.

Company, at Newport Pagnel, in the same county, his majesty, after looking at them, and asking many questions respecting this branch of trade, was most graciously pleased to express himself that the inclination of his own heart naturally led him to set a