A COLLISION IN THE BRITISH CHANNEL.

London, February 17.

A collision took place this morning in the British Channel between the s.s. "Heliopolis" and "Orianda", both English vessels. The latter steamship sank and 14 of her crew were drowned. The "Heliopolis", though seriously damaged, managed to reach Cardiff.

NEWS FROM AMERICA.

TERRIBLE RAILWAY ACCIDENT IN NEW YORK.

New York, February 17.

An electric suburban train on the Harlem section of the New York central railway, filled with suburban residents returning to their homes, was derailed at 6.30 p. m. yesterday at the crossing of 205th street and Webster Avenue. Fifty persons are said to have been killed and 200 injured. Indescribable alarm spread through the whole city on the news becoming known. Crowds of inhabitants of the suburbs to which the train was bound flocked to the scene of the disaster. The names of the victims are not yet known. The train left the great station of the Central railway at 6.13 p. m. and passed 125th street at 6.26. The cause of the derailment has not yet been ascertained. The coaches plunged down the embankment and caught fire. All available doctors were summoned from the hospitals and infirmaries.

Later.

It has now been ascertained that the cause of the disaster was a far too high a rate of speed when rounding a curve. The four last coaches, containing 150 passengers, were overturned but were then dragged on for some 300 yards and completely smashed. Many bodies were so mutilated that identification is impossible. Numbers of thieves came up and began to rob the corpses, but were hunted off by the police. Darkness and the fact that the rails were heavily charged with electricity considerably delayed the work of rescue.

EXPLOSION ON A LINER.

Sandy Hook, February 17.

On the 13th ult. a boiler explosion took place on the Hamburg-America line s. s. "Valdivia" when on the high seas on her way from the West Indies; 7 persons were killed and 3 injured. The vessel was considerably damaged. She arrived here with a damaged funnel and flag at half mast.

Among the 7 killed were two coloured men and among those seriously injured the first officer and a stoker. The ship was laden with oranges and only carried one passenger who has stated that the behaviour of the crew at the time of the disaster was admirable.

THE IMMIGRATION LAW.

Washington, February 17.

The report of the mixed committee of both Houses of Congress on the immigration law was accepted by the Senate yesterday with trifling alterations. The law contains a clause whereby the President can refuse permission to subjects of another country to land on the mainland territory of the United States, if the permits of the immigrants in question are good for other countries, or for the island possessions of the United States or for the Panama Canal zone, if he is convinced that the permits may be used in any way prejudicial to the interests of American workmen. By this clause, which the Japanese Ambassador has agreed until a new treaty between Japan and the United States is concluded, the Japanese school incident may be said to have closed.

AMERICA AND THE CONGO.

Washington, February 17.

The Senate after a sitting held in camera has adopted a resolution to give every possible support to President Roosevelt in any steps which he may take to prevent atrocities in the Congo State, provided that such actions on his part do not infringe any treaty or any other obligations.

NEWS FROM FRANCE.

CHURCH AND STATE.

Paris, February 17.

The rumour current in the lobbies of the Chamber of Deputies of serious differences of opinion in the Cabinet with regard to the preliminary discussion of the renting of the churches, which took place at yesterday's morning sitting of the Cabinet, are emphatically denied from an official source. No incident occurred at the morning sitting which could reflect in the smallest degree on the position of the Ministry. M. Briand, Minister of Education, informed the Cabinet of the new wording of the Treaty formulae for the renting of the churches, and himself pointed out the alterations introduced to meet special cases. A short and perfectly friendly discussion then took place. The Prime Minister took part in this discussion, which, however, was confined to certain remarks of a general character. The discussion was then adjourned to the next meeting of the Cabinet. In order to enable every member of the Cabinet to have detailed knowledge of the text of the formulae as drafted by M. Briand, it was agreed that each member should receive a copy, in order that by next Tuesday's meeting all the Ministers may have formulated any remarks which may have occurred to them.

In the Schismatic Church in the Rue Legendre disturbances again occurred today during divine service in which some 350 persons took part. When Abbé Rail began his sermon and mentioned the name of Monseigneur Villatte, a woman waving a broom made her way to him shouting "Thief"; others present joined in the cry. The disturbers were ejected by the military and many arrests were made.

It is said that Mgr. Villatte intends to consecrate the Bishop destined to succeed him.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY.

Paris, February 17.

The decree relating to wireless telegraphy is to be published at once. An advisory committee is to be formed to which representatives of the Ministries of War, Marine, Post Office, Colonies, Exterior and Public Works will belong and which will be presided over by some person not in the Government. All posts are to be divided among the various Ministries and in case of war will be subordinate to the War or Marine Ministries. Especially large stations are to be erected at Quessant, Marseilles, Algiers, Toulon, Bizerta and Oran and ordinary stations at Dunkirk, Cherbourg, Brest, Lorient, Rochefort, Ajaccio, Boulogne, La Coudre, Nice and Cape Corse.

DEATH OF CARDUCCI.

Rome, February 17.

Signor Carducci died at 1.40 yesterday morning. He refused spiritual assistance from the clergy.

The news of the death of Signor Carducci has created profound sorrow throughout Italy. Special black-edged editions of the newspapers have appeared everywhere, publishing portraits and eulogies of the deceased poet. The King, the Queen-mother, and all the Princes of the Royal House, the Premier, and the Presidents of the Senate and Chamber, and the authorities and associations throughout the country, have telegraphed their condolences to Signor Carducci's family, who have already received thousands of telegrams.

For some days Carducci had been kept alive almost exclusively by artificial means, though he returned consciousness until yesterday. When the end was seen to be inevitable, the President of the Italian Chamber of Deputies sent a telegram of sympathy in the name of the House. Carducci was 72 years of age.

As a writer, Carducci has had a chequered career, and 20 years ago he was regarded as the head of that school of "poetry of decadence" which has been held to have also its exemplars in other countries. Doubtless Carducci's aggressive advocacy of atheistic principles embittered literary controversies. His "Ode to Satan" was for many years a stock phrase of reproach. Time, the healer, however, exercised its assuaging influence in this, as in other matters, and with his advancing age all sections of Italian opinion seem to have agreed to accept the poet as perhaps the foremost figure in Italian letters. A few years ago Queen Margherita purchased his house and library for preservation as a museum.

Carducci, it should be observed, had himself contributed much to this gratifying change. From being an insistent Republican, he had mellowed with years into a warm supporter of the Monarchy, and several odes of his in honour of Queen Margherita are considered to be among the best of his verses. Last year he was awarded the Nobel prize for literature.

Carducci began life as a professor in Bologna University, and as a lecturer won a reputation for strenuous conscientiousness of which, even within the last 12 months, he has given an amusingly striking evidence. He had been invited to honour the University of his early professorship by lecturing on Italian literature, and there was naturally a great attendance of the best society. After the lecture had begun, a prominent politician of the Chamber of Deputies, who had been unable to reach the hall in time, entered, and was respectfully ushered into the front. Here a chair was provided for him, which he had no sooner occupied than he received from Carducci on the platform an indignant rating for disturbing the lecture, which he will probably remember for some time to come.

FEHM PASHA BANISHED.

The Adjutant General of the Sultan, Fehim Pasha, has been banished by order of the Sultan. He was taken last night on board a ship which was in readiness and which then left for Mudania. He is to go first to Brussa. All his police agents were previously arrested and lodged in the central gaol. His exile follows on the direct command of the Sultan, on the ground of the enquiry conducted by the special commission. This energetic action on the part of the Sultan has made an excellent impression on the Turkish as well as the European population.

THE MOROCCAN CRISIS.

Tangier, February 17.

In consequence of the submission of the Beni Idders, the War Minister El Gebbas is said to have determined to resume the operations against Raisuli. The troops sent to Arzila have rejoined the Mahalla. The tribes that have submitted are to send auxiliaries. Raisuli remains in the neighbourhood of Tazerut an attempt to isolate which will be made.

Companies of considerable strength are being collected in Fez; it is believed here that they are the men who will form the international police corps.

A request has been made by leading men of the Beni Arros tribe that the Mahalla shall not proceed against the Marabout Abd el Selem, they have been answered that the Marabout can give no asylum to laymen. It is believed here that Caid MacLean, who recently left for Fez, has been charged with the task of procuring supplies for the Mahalla.

It is said that the Maghzen is thinking of supporting the construction of a harbour at Larache, which implies a grant of 7,500,000 francs from the Shereeffian treasury. The estimate for the harbour works of Casablanca and Safi, undertaken by a French company, amounts to 3 millions.

A CURIOUS ADVENTURE.

An English merchant returning from a tour through France met with a curious adventure in Calais. With a bag in his hand he arrived at the quay just in time to see a steamer on the point of leaving. Suddenly making up his mind, he jumped for it and landed on deck just as the last hawser was thrown off. His surprise may be imagined when, among the first class passengers in front of him, he recognised King Edward and Queen Alexandra. A servant at once stepped up to him and asked his business. The man had already realised that instead of a regular passenger steamer it was a special one taking the Royal Pair back to England after their trip to Paris. "I am a loyal subject" was all the unfortunate wight could stammer out in his measureless embarrassment. He was led below where he had to undergo a serious cross examination from the ship's officers. After he had satisfied them as to his identity and the officers saw that it was no anarchist they had to deal with, as they thought at first, he was allowed to join the sailors till the English coast was reached, when he speedily left the ship. King Edward is said he have been heartily amused when the incident was related to him.

GENERAL NEWS.

(From our London correspondent.)

A huge whiskey fraud has been discovered which has robbed the Revenue authorities on a very large scale, but the name of the firm has yet to be made public. The system was found out through the low prices at which a certain distillery firm disposed of its whiskey. Pipes have been unearthed through which the spirit was conveyed in order to evade the duty and these pipes were promptly removed. Efforts are being made through Members of Parliament connected with the trade to compel the Government to prosecute this firm, which has hitherto only been called upon by the Revenue authorities to pay a high fine of £25,000. It is one of the gravest cases of its kind in the annals of history and ought not to be compromised.

Unfortunately the spread of the spotted fever epidemic is increasing in England instead of, as was hoped, diminishing and in addition to the cases reported at Liverpool, one has occurred in London and one each in Longton and Wolverhampton. It generally affects young children and may really be termed a children's disease.

The Bill to enable women to vote at parliamentary elections, is being brought forward by Mr. W. H. Dickinson, and was read in the House of Commons on Friday last. The second reading is fixed for March 8, when a division will be taken and it may be carried. The women suffragists are highly elated and very grateful to Mr. Dickinson.

A decision has been arrived at by the Speaker to exclude all ladies from the central lobby of the House of Commons unless accompanied by a member, which of course deals a severe blow at the social life of St. Stephen's where in the summer months so many have been in the habit of meeting for afternoon teas on the terrace.

Following on the advice of his medical attendant the Prime Minister kept to his house all last week hoping to be in the House of Commons early in the present week, when his cold may be expected to have left him.

All hope has been abandoned of the safety of the two steamers from the Firth of Forth which encountered a hurricane in the North Sea on Jan. 30. Thirty-five lives are believed to be lost.

The Countess of Aberdeen, who has been indisposed, has now quite recovered. There can be no doubt that the extreme fatigue occasioned by the constant festivities during the opening of the Dublin season had told their inevitable tale on the popular Vice-Reine.

A most brilliant reception was given by the Marchioness of Salisbury at her town residence in Arlington-street to a large company of ladies and gentlemen invited to meet Mr. Balfour and the Unionist leaders.

Queen Alexandra was not expected after all to go to Sandringham before the first Court of the season. Their Majesties gave a dinner to about forty guests on Saturday night at Buckingham Palace.

Professor Martens (Permanent Member of Council of the Ministry of Russian Foreign Affairs) has left London for the Hague. He was received by King Edward at Buckingham Palace prior to his departure, and again had a most pleasing interview.

The White Star liner "Majestic" which arrived in New York last Friday, after a rough passage, which lasted seven days and nine hours, landed 574 passengers, including Alexis Aladyn, the Russian Socialist leader, who was a member of the Russian Duma. He has gone to America to try and excite sympathy for the suffering Russians and to get funds together for them.

Lord Marcus Beresford was unfortunately too ill to sail with Lady Marcus for Madeira on Saturday last, as his medical advisers would not allow him to risk the journey. Lord Marcus' attack of influenza was unusually sharp and severe.

Arrangements have been made by the Lord Mayor to lay the foundation stone of the new concert-hall, which will bear the old title of St. James's Hall, on Saturday April 20. It is being built in Great Portland-street at a cost of £100,000 and is to be finished, according to the contract, by September next.

Sir Brampton Gordon has put the Deceased Wife's Sister Bill down for second reading on Friday next, therefore there is now every prospect of the measure receiving a favourable issue this session.

Dr. Macnamara has been succeeded by Sir Edwin Cornwall as hon. secretary of the London Liberal members of the House of Commons. A resolution was passed by the party at their meeting to congratulate Dr. Macnamara on becoming a member of the Government and to wish him a bright political career.

The funeral of the Countess Cadogan, at Culford, was of a very quiet description. The remains were interred in the vault in Culford Church and the mourners included Earl Cadogan, his two daughters (Lady Sophie Scott and Lady Lurgan) and five sons. A beautiful wreath was sent by the King and Queen.

Once more Mr. H. Freeman has won the tobogganing prize at Davos Platz, having gained a second victory in the Symonds Cup. In the last ten years this has only fallen once before to an Englishman and that was Mr. W. Stuart-Maclaren in 1905, with which exception it has always gone to a Klosters tobogganer.

The shareholders of Messrs. Howard and Wyndham met at Edinburgh and decided to sell six theatres in Edinburgh, Glasgow and Newcastle for £160,000.

A grand ball was recently given in the Town Hall, Galway by the Master of the Galway Foxhounds, Mr. Isaac Bell, one of the most popular American hosts. The entire entertainment was organised by Mrs. Bell, the Master's mother, who is a very charming American lady. There were about four hundred guests who came from various counties and it was acknowledged by them that it was the best ball which had taken place in the West of Ireland. The cotillon was led by Colonel Arthur Courtenay and Miss Pansy Waithman, daughter of Lady Philippa Waithman, and lasted two hours.

A picturesque naval wedding took place last Saturday at George's Church, Hanover Square, when Lieutenant Hal Spencer, R. N., married Miss Gladys Mitchell Bruce, only daughter of Dr. Mitchell Bruce of 23, Harley-street. Archdeacon Day, the Rev. James Stephens and the Rev. D. Anderson officiated and the crew of Submarine B 6, of which the bridegroom is in command, lined the aisle. The bride was given away by her father.

There were eight bridesmaids in pink dresses escorted by eight naval officers in full uniform. The bride's dress and train were of white satin, the train being carried by a four-year-old "midshipman" and a tiny maiden.

The lace ball at Dublin Castle is fixed to take place on March 5 and promises to be one of the great events of the season. There will be lace quadrilles and embroidery quadrilles which are now being rehearsed.

Great fears now exist in the family of Harry Thaw that in consequence of the defence in his case having set up the plea of temporary insanity, the District Attorney may request the Court to appoint a commission of lunacy to decide the question as to whether he is now insane. In Chicago a lot of betting has already taken place on the result of the trial. The odds there are reported to stand as follows:—Fifty to one that Thaw will not be sentenced to death, five to two on his acquittal, and even money that the present trial will be inconclusive.

Enquiries have been made in New York shipping circles with a view to dumping American coal in England. It has been calculated that good coal can be purchased for export at 10s. a ton, and that the freight to London would be 11s. a ton. This would enable American exporters to undersell the London merchants and still obtain a capital profit.

Mrs. J. D. Rockefeller has been lying seriously ill at Lakewood, New Jersey. Her husband has hurried to her by special train from Augusta, Georgia.

Queen Alexandra paid her second visit to the German Opera, Covent Garden on Friday night to hear the new Danish tenor Herr Herold in the rôle of Lohengrin. Her Majesty wore pink flowers in her black dress and the Portuguese Minister, M. de Soveral was her guest on the occasion.

At the New Royalty Theatre the Prince and Princess of Wales and Prince Christian were present at the matinée performance in aid of the French charities in London and the Lord Mayor's fund for the Jamaica sufferers. Her Royal Highness wore petunia velvet with a toque of flowers and shaded ospreys.

The reception of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught in Calcutta on March 7, will be public, but the visit itself will be informal.

It is the property of the Misses Ludgate, who are the tenants of the inn, and exhibit the picture with pride. It came into their possession from an ancestor of theirs, a Miss Smith of Grafton Regis, Northamptonshire, but it was Mr. Spielmann, the Editor of the "Magazine of Art" who first called their attention to the value of it.

The marriage of Miss Edna May to Mr. Lewisohn will be fixed directly the present run of "Nelly Neil" terminates and she will appear no more after that as a professional actress. Miss May hopes to have homes in both London and New York.

Princess Clementine, the last of the daughters of Louis Philippe, died at Vienna last Saturday in her ninetieth year. At one time the Princess was a great deal in England and in this country played a great rôle of intrigue, so much so that English statesmen had reason to be thankful when she at last made her home on the Continent.

A final proof was given of the innocence of George Henry Lewis, when Millie Marsh appeared in the dock on Saturday and confessed that she had given false evidence against him in order to save her lover Brady.

JUSTIFYING ITS TITLE.

Near the French town of Maisons-sur-Marne there is in a pine forest a lonely spot known as "Morte Femme". Of this grim name nobody seems to have any idea as to the origin, but for the future nobody need be at a loss for an explanation. Some men out shooting in the forest the other day suddenly came upon the dead body of a young woman at this place. There was no sign of violence, and the postmortem examination established that the poor creature had died from starvation. She had been a servant at Troyes, and had set out to walk to Rheims on foot in the midst of the hard weather. Overcome by hunger and fatigue, she had sunk down in the forest to die, unpitied and alone.

CONCERT NOTICES.

In the fifth and last Philharmonic concert, at the Gewerbehaus this evening, 7 o'clock, two artists who are quite new to Dresden will appear. Señor Pablo Casals is said to be the first among the violoncello virtuosi of the day; he is known in his own country, in France and Italy as the Sarasate of the 'cello. In any case he is a distinguished artist. The Guide musical writes of Señor Casals: "For him the instrument seems not to exist, so completely has he mastered all its difficulties; he seems in playing to think only of showing the beauties of his subject in the right light. Casals is today a master".

Mdlle Marie Buisson, from Brussels, is purely French, sings "Bergerettes" with inimitable chic and wonderful refinement of detail. The Strassb. Nachrichten writes of her performance: "The whole is an indescribably softly toned pastel drawing."

In his third and last historical concert at the Palmengarten tomorrow evening, 7 o'clock, Herr Eugen d'Albert will play the following programme: Chopin's Sonata in B-minor op. 58, Nocturne in C-minor op. 48 No. 1, Scherzo in B-minor op. 20, and the Etudes: op. 25 No. 7 in C-sharp minor, and op. 25 No. 11 in A-minor. Liszt's Sonetto di Petrarca No. 47, Au Bord d'une Source, and Polonaise in E. Brahms' Variations on a Händel theme op. 24. Sgambati's Nocturne op. 31 in D-flat. Saint Saëns' Mazurka op. 66. Tschalkowsky's Valse caprice op. 4. Grieg's Ballade op. 24, in the form of Variations on a Norwegian melody. Sinding's "Im Volkston" op. 32 No. 4, and "Marche grotesque" op. 32 No. 1. Raff's "Giga con variazioni" from the Suite op. 91. Rubinstein's Barcarole in A-minor No. 6. d'Albert's Serenata in B, and Scherzo No. 2 op. 16. Tausig's "Nachtfalter" Waltz (after Strauss).

The programme of the violin and vocal concert which Herr Max Lewinger and Frau Frania Lewinger will give at the Palmengarten on Friday evening next, will include: Wieniawski's Concerto for violin in F-sharp-minor, Tartini's "Teufelstriller" Sonata for violin, and Auer's Hungarian Rhapsody for violin; as well as songs by Liszt, Brahms, Cornelius, Grieg, Rubinstein, and Pfitzner.

The programme of Herr Rudolf Zwintscher's Liszt concert which he will give at the Palmengarten on Saturday the 23rd instant in conjunction with Herr Hans Buff-Giessen (tenor), will comprise the following selection from the master's works:—"Funérailles", from "Harmonies poétiques et religieuses", for pianoforte. Four songs: "Der Fischerknabe", "Ständchen" ("Kling leise, mein Lied"), "Es muss ein Wunderbares sein", and "O komm' im Traum". Pianoforte solos: "Les jeux d'eau de la ville d'Este," Valse-Improptu, "Waldesrauschen". Five songs: "Lebe wohl," "Die Fischerstochter", "Sei still", "Wieder möcht' ich dir begegnen", and "In Liebeslust". Pianoforte solo, Sonata in B-minor (in one movement).

BURGLARY "AGLEY."

A burglar has had a terrible experience in Marseilles Cathedral. He had somehow managed to get through the roof, and was lowering himself down from the ceiling to the floor by the lightning conductor wires, to which he had attached himself by a sliding noose, when at a height of twenty feet from the floor, the noose, catching on a projection from the wall, broke with his weight, and he was precipitated downwards, falling into a confessional, where, from the quantity of blood found, he must have seriously injured himself. By blood traces, which could be followed to the outer street, he is supposed to have hidden himself till the doors were opened and then stolen away. But all clue to him is lost.

A MAD FREAK.

There have been many freaks and odd experiences by rail, but one of the most singular incidents of the kind on record occurred the other evening in Lombardy. The Milan express was approaching Varzi when a man appeared on the side of the line waving a red flag violently, and although the distance signals showed no sign of anything out of the common, the driver felt bound to stop his train. As soon as it drew up the man with the flag shouted loudly, "This is Paris." He was a tramp who had become suddenly insane.
