THE WRECK OF THE "BERLIN."

It will probably be some time before an accurate list can be obtained of those who lost their lives in the terrible disaster off the Hook of Holland. The list published by the Great Eastern Railway Co. contains of course only the names of those who had booked berths, among them being 18 Englishmen and one lady, presumably an Englishwoman, by name Miss Thomson.

The "Berlin" was well-known to passengers to the Continent by the Harwich route as being, with the "Dresden", the largest and most luxurious of all the Great Eastern fleet. The two boats were those generally employed on the Harwich-Hook of Holland traffic; smaller vessels work the Harwich-Antwerp line. This is the first accident the Great Eastern Railway have had on their route since it was founded some twenty years ago.

The Dutch Coast, however, near the Hook of Holland, is well-known as being of a dangerous character; some six or seven years back a small Dutch trading vessel, with several English passengers who were going to play at a music-hall in Rotterdam, went down with all on board just outside the river. One of the Great Eastern boats grounded last year at Maasluis, but was got off without any serious damage. There have been several other wrecks in the neighbourhood; and hardly a month passes in the fishing season without one of the Dutch fishing smacks from the neighbouring villages of Katwyk, Nordwyk, and Scheveningen being lost. It is safe to say, however, that nobody who ever went across by the Great Eastern route thought there was the least danger in the journey, for apart from the slight mishap above alluded to, nothing has ever occurred to give the least alarm to passengers.

The "Berlin" was due at the Hook of Holland Pier at 5.5 a. m., and the fact that she had hardly entered the Nieuwe Waterweg (the new channel) at six o'clock, indicates that, had all gone well, she would have been about an hour and a half late on arrival. There is nothing exceptional about this, seeing that at this time of year, when gales are frequent in the North Sea, the cross-channel services are often three or four hours late.

Most people who have been in Holland during the winter months will remember the tremendous force of the gales; and the Maas Channel is absolutely unprotected from the wind. The country lies below sea-level for miles; not a hill is to be seen; and it is nothing unusual for a vessel to be blown ashore.

As we announced yesterday the surmise that there were still some survivors on the wreck turned out to be correct, and after repeated unsuccessful attempts ten persons, who were still alive, were released from their terrible predicament. The tugboat "Hellevoetsluis" with a jolly-boat in tow managed to make fast to a buoy in the vicinity of the wreck and eventually succeeded in establishing communication with the "Berlin". A member of the tugboat's crew managed to swim to the outer end of the mole and make a line fast there, another line was then thrown from the wreck and eventually caught and made fast to the first line. Communication thus being established, the jolly-boat was dragged alongside the "Berlin" and the ten survivors still on board were taken in the boat to the pilot steamer "Jan Spanjaard" on board of which was Prince Henry of the Netherlands, who had come over in an automobile from the Hague in the morning to visit the scene of the disaster and personally express his deep sympathy and that of his consort, the Queen of the Netherlands.

Up to Friday evening some 35 corpses had been brought ashore, but the boisterous wind and heavy sea makes it dangerous and, indeed, impossible for small boats to approach the wreck.

The s. s. "Amsterdam", a sister ship of the ill-fated "Berlin", has reached Harwich safely from the Hook. Her passengers are unable to throw any light on the disaster since they embarked late on Thursday night and of course passed the wreck, which is fast breaking up, in the darkness.

A member of the crew of the s. s. "Clacton", which lay to in the vicinity of the wreck and attempted in vain to rescue those on board, has made the following statement: "We started about an hour and a half later than the "Berlin" and reached the mouth of the Maas at about 6.30 a. m. There we saw the "Berlin" lying broadside on at the end of the North Mole. Captain Dale at once sheered off and as we made a circle to avoid the fate of the "Berlin" we nearly went aground ourselves. After we had turned, Captain Dale at once went to work and endeavoured to give assistance to the stranded steamer. A fearful north westerly gale was blowing and the sea was running mountains high. We steered close to the rocks but had to retreat again as we could do nothing. We then attempted to launch the lifeboat but found it impossible, so tremendous was the sea. Again and again we attempted to reach the wreck and only desisted after several hours when we could see no more sign of life on board of her. At first we had seen groups of persons on board, some on deck and some in the smoking room, and as we got near the "Berlin" they called out to us. There seemed to be nothing like panic on board, perfect order prevailing. All were wearing lifebelts and had clustered together on the lee side of the ship to find some shelter from the tremendous seas which were breaking over the ship, hiding the funnels and masts in clouds of spray. We approached within a hundred yards of the wreck and threw our lifebelts over attached to lines but failed to reach the "Berlin". Suddenly she broke in two and we saw the passengers and crew swept away and drowned before our eyes. We heard their cries for help but could do nothing. When we passed the scene of the disaster on our way back to Harwich we could only see the stern of the ship sticking up from the water and not a soul was to be seen on board. The fore part of the ship sank first and numbers of persons were drowned then. Captain Dale did everything he possibly could and we were ourselves in great danger as the waves were beating over us with tremendous force. We could not, of course, recognise those on board the "Berlin"; they were huddled together, but we could hear their cries for help sounding over the storm-lashed waters."

The latest news from the Hook is that of the ten persons saved six were passengers, among them Fräulein Gäbler of the Dresden Opera House, and the rest were English members of the crew. It was believed on Friday night that three women are still on the wreck.

It was rumoured at first that the opera singer Herr Kraus was on board the doomed vessel, but his father, a retired army surgeon living in Prague, has received a telegram from Leipzig that his son and his wife have arrived there safely. Herr Kraus might easily have been one of the ill-fated passengers, but it appears that Herr van Dyck told him a week ago in confidence that his continued indisposition made it impossible for him to continue his season of German opera in London. Herr Kraus accordingly left England with his wife on Sunday, but the unfortunate chorus singers, who were not told of Herr van Dyck's change of plans, were unable to leave until last Wednesday night and so perished.

It is understood that among those on board the "Berlin" were J. F. Rollason, the jockey, and his father. Rollason left Harwich last night for Holland, where he was under orders to ride for Chev. Kattendyke for eight months.

Another account, dated Friday evening, reaches us from Rotterdam of the rescue of the survivors of the disaster. After repeated endeavours to reach the wreck on Thursday night, the lifeboat made three attempts at rescue on Friday. The first two were unsuccessful but the captain of the lifeboat remarked, on returning from his second trip, that the third attempt, which he purposed to make during the afternoon, promised greater success. At 1.45 the pilot steamer the "Hellevoetsluis", started out; the weather was at first tolerably favourable, but soon storm and snow made it impossible to see far. The "Hellevoetsluis" first launched and took in tow a small boat in which was seated a pilot. Soon afterwards six pilots were to be seen in the iron tower of the lighthouse. After several fruitless attempts by means of a hawser, communication was established between the wreck of the "Berlin" and the lighthouse tower. Immediately, one person from the wreck let himself down from the hawser and landed on the Mole. Other persons followed and, at the end of three quarters of an hour, a number of the rescued were on the Mole. A tug brought the news to the Hook that ten persons had been saved and that the attempts at rescue were being continued, although rendered difficult by the driving snow. When the first lifeboat ran in, it was greeted with enthusiasm. This boat announced that eleven persons, among them two women, had been saved and were all on board the "Hellevoetsluis", and that there were still two women on the wreck who were too exhausted to trust themselves to the hawser. Although the rescue parties had been working for 36 hours, they wished to continue their efforts, in order to save these two women too. When the "Hellevoetsluis" arrived, and Prince Henry landed, he was greeted by the crowd with loud cheers and cries of "Long live the Prince!"

The rescued persons were at once conveyed in automobiles to the "Hotel Amerika", where every preparation had been made for their reception. They received every possible attention and were put at once to bed.

The Amsterdam Telegraaf of yesterday learns that the three women who were still on the wreck were rescued at 3 o'clock on Saturday morning.

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

London, February 22.

The Lower House, by 263 votes to 34, today passed the second reading of the deceased wife's sister Bill. The Secretary of State for War has issued a memorandum on the army budget for 1907-1908; the total outlay is estimated at 27,760,000 pounds, which is a reduction of over two millions on the 1906-1907 estimates. In the memorandum it is announced that not only will extra pay be given for long service, but that those men who have reached a required standard of excellence in shooting, signalling, &c. will receive special service pay in proportion to their progress.

The memorandum repeats the points of view and proposals put forward by Mr. Haldane in his recent speeches.

NEWS FROM AMERICA.

THE JAPANESE DIFFICULTY.

New York, February 22.

Now that the new Immigration Bill has been signed, and Washington is still without any representations from the Japanese Government, it is taken for granted that Japan agrees for the present, at any rate, to accept the situation. Dispatches from Tokio show that the act has been received there by the Press and public generally with more calmness than was expected. The feeling among the coolies in Hawaii is no guide to Japanese feeling generally. A large number of the Japanese who have emigrated to Hawaii have done so merely in order to qualify themselves for emigration to San Francisco, where the conditions of labour and the opportunities for advancement are much more favourable. Under the new condition of things they see themselves doomed to remain in Hawaii, or return home, a choice of two evils for those who desired to make fortunes in California. The only thing that can save them is an unexpected generosity on the part of the President, but this is not likely.

CHURCH AND STATE IN FRANCE.

Paris, February 22.

It is announced from Rome that the Vatican will demand that by the church lease contracts to be arranged, the priests will be allowed the right of breaking the contracts so soon as the means placed at their disposal do not allow them to carry out the duties imposed upon them. The condition made by the French Government that all former congreganists are to be excluded from the priestly office, the Vatican is quite unable to accept.

It is surmised that the Prefect of the Seine will now await the proposals of the Archbishop of Paris who, from M. Briand's remarks in the Chamber, now knows what proposals will be refused by the Government and the Chamber and what not. In particular the Government considers that clause impossible of acceptance whereby the priests are to be relieved of the burdens placed upon them by repairs which may become necessary. Such questions must be settled between the mayors and priests from time to time.

According to the Echo de Paris M. Briand cherishes the hope that the negotiations between the Prefect of the Seine and Archbishop Richard will attain the desired result. On the other hand it is reported that the Archbishop, following instructions from the Vatican, will decline the proposals as to the burden to fall on the clergy owing to inevitable expenses for repairs and as to the exclusion of the congreganists.

RUSSIAN AFFAIRS.

ADMIRAL NEBOGATOFF'S FATE.

St. Petersburg, February 22.
Ex-Admiral Nebogatoff has petitioned the authorities not to send him to serve his ten year's term of imprisonment in the Government of Orel, but to allow him to serve it in St. Petersburg, where his children are at school. However, as the only place in which he could be accommodated is the SS. Peter-Paul Fortress on the Neva, and as that fortress is already filled to overflowing with "politicals" and other prisoners, the authorities are unable to decide for the moment. As a matter of fact, the fortress referred to is set apart by law solely for military prisoners; thus, as Nebogatoff has lost his military rank, he ought not to be imprisoned there.

THE REVOLUTIONARY MOVEMENT.

Warsaw, February 22.
A band of 15 persons today attacked and robbed the branch post office in the Kruca street. One official was killed, three soldiers and three post office officials being severely wounded. The miscreants escaped. All the money in the post office, amounting to 11,000 roubles, was stolen.

THE MOROCCAN CRISIS.

Tangier, February 22.
Raisuli's messengers, who are charged to support Roghi's request for common action, are said to have brought back a favourable answer yesterday. Three hundred soldiers from Fez have replaced the Arzila garrison which has joined the troops before Zinat.

It is believed that the Spaniards will not demand the surrender of the murderer of Ben Mansur, who was under Spanish protection. The continued enquiry shows Ben Mansur in such a bad light that he may be considered to have been executed.

GENERAL NEWS.

(From our London correspondent.)

Lord and Lady Farquhar were honoured on Wednesday night with the presence of the King and Queen at dinner and an evening party at their residence in Grosvenor square.

The King and Queen intend to still further increase the accommodation at Sandringham House, and have had several schemes to choose from for considerable structural alterations to their Majesty's favourite home in Norfolk. The alterations will include a new block of rooms at the stables' end of the mansion and will in no way interfere with its present architectural beauty.

An erratic tale has been flying about concerning the present state of the Princess Royal's health, but she is really deriving great benefit from her sojourn at Gibraltar. The Princess and the Duke of Fife naturally lead a very quiet life which they both prefer, and this may have given rise to the idea that she is again ill. As a matter of fact the Princess Royal really went to Gibraltar to finish a convalescence and it was quite understood that she wished to stay there in perfect seclusion; and now her wishes are being carried out, all is going on well.

Next Saturday a serious question has to be settled which is, whether a few private persons or the general body of ratepayers shall draw the profits of the great public undertakings of London. The biggest question is who shall run the great electric undertaking that is to supply light and heat and power for the factories and homes, the industries and the residences, of London. Progressives regard this necessity with expectations of great profit for the ratepayers. Moderates predict ruin for the ratepayers, and cling to the private company idea.

CURRENT TOPICS IN AMERICA.

(By letter dated February 11th, from our New York correspondent.)

THE JAPANESE AMERICAN INCIDENT SETTLED.

The alarmist announcements of various American journals that the relations between America and Japan were highly strained in consequence of the San Francisco schools incident and that things actually looked like war, were followed by various statements from reliable sources in Washington and Tokio which branded the announcements of these war-scenting journals as mere alarmist reports and it was further stated that the diplomatic relations of the two countries had never been strained in any way. The spectre of the war cloud thereupon at once withdrew.

The San Francisco schools dispute is, as has been repeatedly pointed out, a consequence both of the attitude of the American labour world in the Western States to the immigration of Asiatic labourers, and of the general repugnance prevailing there to Mongolians as a whole, among whom the Japanese, much as they resent it, must be counted. The Japanese Government would not apparently have protested against the exclusion of Japanese children from the public schools of San Francisco had they not seen in the incident a good opportunity to protest against the treatment meted out to Japanese in the Pacific States. The schools dispute made straight the way for the solution of the question of the immigration of Japanese workmen against which the American labour world has long been contending. By the solution of this question, which, under existing circumstances, will proceed in a far smoother manner than would have been possible at any other time, similar incidents will, at the same time, be avoided. The Californians, who have hitherto claimed the right to manage their domestic affairs themselves without the interference of the Federal Government, even if they infringed the Treaties of the Federal Government with foreign Powers, adopted a more conciliatory attitude after the President had called the attention of the Californian members of Congress, in a manner that admitted of no misunderstanding, to the fact that by their obstinacy they were seriously embarrassing the United States in her relations with Japan. From the unequivocal and courageous manner in which the President explained the situation to them, one or other of the Californians may have inferred that the relations between the two countries were exceedingly strained and may have conveyed this impression to the newspaper representatives who, at every hour of the day, besiege the White House. This explains the fact that war was suddenly scented in the air!

The President has promised the Californians that if only they abolish the regulations providing for the segregation of Mongolian children—including the Japanese—in separate schools, a new treaty shall be concluded with Japan which will regulate the question, so important to the Californians, of the immigration of cheap Asiatic labour, in the direction that the labourers of the one country shall be excluded from the other. Japan is said to have already expressed her willingness to conclude a treaty of this kind. The Californians may now abolish the regulation in question.

It is significant that since Mr. Secretary Root championed an extension of the powers of the Federal Government, the opponents of this centralisation idea have let no opportunity slip, of harping on the right of each individual State to manage its own domestic affairs. By these statesmen California has been recklessly defended for her attitude in the schools question. This incident, as well as the further one that the ex-Secretary of State, Mr. Olney, during whose term of office the present treaty with Japan was concluded, has now stated that by the treaty the Federal Government has no right to satisfy the claims of Japan against any individual State, gives rise, it must be admitted, to a very remarkable situation. Mr. Olney's statement is, in fact, a reply to the Message of the President in which he so unreservedly championed respect for the rights of Japan.

It is noticeable that, while certain journals here scented war, Japan has been paying various attentions to America. A Chicago journal now again reports from Tokio that the South Manchurian railway will adopt the American system of construction and working and that the necessary material will be imported from the United States. Apparently we are to regard this as a tribute of the gratitude of the Japanese to the Americans for having during the war with Russia, the peace negotiations at Portsmouth and on the occasion of the San Francisco dispute, proved their immutable friendship.

THE RESURRECTION OF SAN FRANCISCO.

San Francisco, the city by the Golden Gate, is to rise even more resplendent than before from the heaps of ashes into which it was transmogrified by the catastrophe of last April. The Californian Promotion Company, which is conducting the reconstruction of the city, records with great satisfaction that the city already contains 425,000 inhabitants again, i. e. only 72,000 less than at the time of the catastrophe. During the first few weeks after the days of terror 375,000 inhabitants of the ruined city turned their backs on it. By far the greater part of these fugitives have now returned. In order to further the reconstruction of the city as effectively as possible—the reconstruction was delayed by all kinds of adverse circumstances—an attempt is also to be made to divert a part of the stream of immigrants from Europe to the Golden Gate. The Californian Promotion Company has made arrangements for inducing immigrants, when still in European harbours, to repair to the coast of the Pacific ocean.

Work is at present going on in San Francisco on the largest floating dock in the world which will be able to accommodate two battleships at the same time. The cost of construction is estimated at 1,250,000 dollars. In length the dock will be 1,050 feet, i. e. 120 feet longer than the famous dock in Glasgow, and 225 feet longer than the Alexandra Dock in Belfast.

ANTI-AMERICAN TENDENCY IN CUBA.

News that has lately come to hand as to the situation in Cuba, the Pearl of the Antilles, confirms the correctness of the view held in wide circles in America that the United States by the annexation of Cuba, warmly championed as it certainly is in many quarters, would only be encumbering herself with a "white elephant" which would give as much trouble as the Philippines have already done. This view has long been that of the American Government which, in spite of the vigorous agitation in favour of the annexation of Cuba carried on by certain American and Cuban journals, has held fast to the policy of interfering as little as possible in the domestic affairs of Cuba. The intervention of the United States in Cuba which was based upon the absolute powers conceded to the United States on the occasion of Cuba becoming to an independent Republic, and which at first was welcomed in all Cuban circles with general satisfaction, is now regarded in quite a different light. According to the latest reports from Havana the U. S. are accused of bothering about things which only concern Cuba herself. Among the Liberal Party in Cuba a strong anti-American tendency is making itself felt and there are not wanting those who actually say that they are prepared to go to war with the United States. The Liberals and Moderates form the everlastingly unsatisfied element in Cuba and the Conservatives are harassed by them both. The Conservatives hope for the annexation of the island by the United States, and thereby, for the restoration of order, but the Liberals and Moderates are making life very unpleasant for the American Government.

At the present it is impossible to foretell how long the American troops will remain in Cuba. The Democrats in the Senate are already showing themselves very impatient at the long duration of the occupation and they are reproaching Congress with having handed over Cuban affairs altogether to the President; they are even attacking the President for not evacuating Cuba. It is not impossible that the Democrats may still make the Cuban question the subject of long debates in Congress.

Permanent order, so far as there can be any talk of such a thing, has not by a long way been restored in Cuba yet. The elections have not yet taken place! In spite of the confused political situation the commercial relations between Cuba and the United States under the existing reciprocal treaty are ever being strengthened. A commercial agreement of that kind with Cuba is possible since the products which America draws from Cuba do not come into rivalry with home products. In 1902 America bought from Cuba goods to the value of 78,000,000 dollars and exported to Cuba goods worth 22,000,000 dollars. In 1906 goods to the value of 46,491,444 dollars were exported to Cuba while, on the other hand, the import from Cuba only rose by 49 per cent. America draws from Cuba principally sugar and tobacco which enjoy a 20 per cent customs rebate, and exports to Cuba mainly meat and rice, machines and manufactured goods. The customs rebates granted by Cuba make it impossible for the United States to compete successfully with other countries exporting to Cuba.

Kilian, a rich peasant ..... Herr Erl.
Princely foresters ..... Herr Kruis.
Bridesmaid ..... Herr Markgraf.
..... Herr Ernst.
..... Fräul. Keldorfer.

PLOT. Agathe is loved by Max, but their marriage depends on the victory of the latter at a shooting contest. He has been shooting badly and his evil genius, Caspar, persuades him to get some enchanted bullets which must be moulded at midnight in the haunted Wolf's Glen. Agathe is warned of approaching evil by the Hermit. She endeavours to restrain Max from going to the Glen. Caspar, whose soul is forfeited to Samiel (Satan) on the following night, promises to give him Max' life, if he himself be spared for a few more years. Samiel agrees, promising him more enchanted bullets, which Caspar moulds in Max's presence in the Wolf's Glen during a terrific hurricane. At the shooting match Max is told to fire at a white dove. Agathe endeavours to stop him, but he fires and she falls apparently lifeless; but she has only swooned and the bullet has killed Caspar, Samiel having power over its direction. Max confesses that he has trafficked with the Evil one, but the Prince, at the Hermit's entreaty, promises him pardon after a year's probation.

Mignon.

Opera in three Acts. Music by Ambroise Thomas.

Cast:
Wilhelm Meister ..... Herr Jäger.
Lothario ..... Herr Perron.
Laertes ..... Herr Nebuschka.
Friedrich ..... Herr Erl.
Jarno ..... Herr Wachter.
Antonio ..... Herr Ernst.
Mignon ..... Frau Nast.
Philine ..... Frau Abendroth.
A servant ..... Herr Markgraf.
Zafari ..... Herr Meyer.
The Souffleur ..... Herr Seiler.

PLOT. Lothario, disguised as a minstrel, is seeking his daughter, Sperata. He tries to protect Mignon, a gipsy, who is being ill-treated by the band, but Jarno, the chief of the gipsies scorns him, and a youth, Wilhelm Meister buys Mignon out of pity from him. Out of gratitude for the rescue follows love for her rescuer. Wilhelm is staying with a band of comedians. Philine, one of the troupe, loves him, and Mignon in her jealousy is about to drown herself, but is restrained by hearing Lothario's harp. Mignon induces Lothario to set fire to the house where Philine is playing. The guests all rush out, and Philine asks Mignon to fetch her nosegay which she has left behind. Mignon, who is now full of remorse, goes into the burning house, but Wilhelm rushes in and rescues her. Lothario, who is Marquis of Cypriani, discovers Mignon to be his lost daughter Sperata. Wilhelm has come to love her, and Philine bestowing her affections on another adorer, Friedrich, Wilhelm and Mignon are united.

Composer: Ambroise Thomas, born 1811, died 1896.

BULL FIGHT IN PARIS.

The streets of Paris have been the scene of an improvised but very real bull fight, in which the casual wayfarers involuntarily discharged the office of banderillos and picadores, and served admirably for the bull to whet his fury upon. The animal was being led through the Boulevard Pasteur when it broke away, doing damage right and left. Two foot passengers were badly hurt, a horse was disembowelled, a van, a market cart, and a milk cart were upset. Then some cycle police appeared, and having been driven into a field near the Rue Vasco da Gama, the beast was there dispatched.

Herr Leo Erichsen, the well known psychologist, who lately had the honour of lecturing before His Majesty the King, will give two experimental lectures—one at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, the other at 8 in the evening—on Wednesday next the 27th instant (Busstag), with very interesting programmes. Tickets from F. Ries.

The working committee of the Press Ball "Wild West" held its final sitting in the red room of the Exhibition Palace on Thursday last. It was decided that the committee should continue in existence and should superintend the arrangements for the next Press Ball which will take place in the exhibition buildings on February 6th of next year. The committee gratefully recognised that much of the brilliant success of the recent ball was due to the gracious presence of H. M. King Friedrich August, who attended the ball for the first time and of H. R. H. Prince Johann Georg. Before separating the committee gave three hearty cheers for His Majesty.

In answer to general requests Frau Alice Wittmund will give a second recital of fairy tales on Saturday, March 2nd, at the "Saal der Kaufmannschaft", Ostra-Allee 9. The programme will be changed and old melodies on the violin are to accompany the recital. Tickets may be obtained from Richter's Kunsthandlung, Prager Strasse.

The guards in the city today are furnished by the Schützen regiment No. 108, whose band will play in the Neustadt about 12.30 p. m. Tomorrow the guards will be furnished by the 1st Grenadier regiment No. 100, and the band will play in the Schloss Platz about 12.40.

PIANETTO.

The newest thing in the domain of pianoforte construction is a home instrument with only four octaves in the very pleasing form of a small piano and therefore called Pianetto. It has just been completed in the factory of the Court pianoforte maker August Förster in Löbau, and will be heard for the first time in the folk-song concert with lecture at the Vereinshaus this evening, thus inaugurating its mission as the "Volksklavier der Zukunft". A charming little piece of furniture, it possesses a full and beautiful tone; and, as it only costs one third the price of a full-grown Pianino, it may well become a home friend in many a musical family.

The Pianetto will serve in the first place for accompanying songs at home and in schools; it should encourage the cult of the simple German Lied, and it hopes in that way to exercise an educating and ennobling influence among the people at large. It will help to oust that insipid automatic "music" which makes itself heard everywhere, and instead of it to place good home music, and therewith the beauty and deep pathos of German folk-art, within the reach even of those having but small means. It should also be welcomed by choral societies; while all child-souls will certainly greet it, as a learning instrument, more sympathetically than they would a great big pianoforte.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.
Rotterdam, February 23. The following particulars of the rescue of the last three survivors from the wreck of the "Berlin" are reported. At 1 o'clock at night the tug "Wodan", with a boat in tow, proceeded to the wreck. The captain of the tug, Sperling, landed on the Mole, climbed on to the wreck, made ropes fast round the women and lowered them one by one into the boat, which conveyed them to the "Wodan". They were landed from the "Wodan" at Hook of Holland at 3 a.m., and at once conveyed to the Hotel, where they received the most careful attention. Captain Sperling will return to the wreck in the course of today to recover the bodies remaining on board.
London, February 23. The Great Eastern Railway Company confirms the statement that Fräulein Theile, Frau Wenberg, and the maidservant have been saved from the wreck of the "Berlin."
Pretoria, February 23. The first Transvaal Ministry will consist exclusively of members of the Het Volk party with General Louis Botha as head of the Cabinet.
Pittsburg, February 23. According to a report from Johnstown early this morning, from 40 to 50 persons were injured in the railway accident at Mineral Point, and 12 are missing. The rescuing party were engaged in removing the roofs of the carriages that fell into the river with the object of getting out the passengers still in them.
Hook of Holland, February 23. The captain of the tug "Wodan" says that the work of rescuing the last three survivors from the wreck of the "Berlin", although it only took half an hour, was exciting and risky. There are still 10 or 11 bodies in the wreck. Prince Henry visited the three women last saved.
