The Chancellor of the Exchequer, the Rt. Hon. H. Asquith, has announced his intention of introducing the budget on April 18.

CHANNEL STEAMERS IN COLLISION.

Dover, March 25.

The two channel steamers the "Princess Henrietta" from Ostend with 20 passengers on board, and the "Lord Warden" from Calais with 41 passengers, collided this morning at the entrance to the harbour. The "Lord Warden" had two of her boats smashed, as well as several plates and part of her deck started. The "Princess Henrietta" was damaged forward, and in her steering gear. She was, however, able to proceed to Ostend in accordance with her time tables. The "Lord Warden" had to be docked. The collision caused great excitement on board both vessels but no one was injured.

AMERICAN FINANCE.

Washington, March 25.

In order to facilitate the sale of United States 1907 4% bonds, the Secretary of State, Mr. Cortelyou, has announced that in exchange for these bonds, which now lie in the Treasury as security for State deposits, he will accept other United States bonds, as well as Philippine bonds, certificates or bonds of the towns of Manila, of Porto Rico and Columbia district at par; besides these he will accept such State, municipal and railway bonds, up to 90% of their value, which have been recognised by law as collateral security for the savings banks in the States of New York and Massachusetts.

THE SAN FRANCISCO EXHIBITION.

New York, March 25.

The Governor of California intends to impose his veto on the Bill, already introduced, whereby a million dollars will be voted for a World's Fair in San Francisco in 1913. The Governor states that the proposal has been made purely out of sympathy with the sore-afflicted city of San Francisco. The World's Fair plan could not be carried out.

NEWS FROM FRANCE.

THE FUNERAL OF M. BERTHELOT

At the solemn obsequies of M. Berthelot and his wife in the Panthéon, on either side of the catafalque stood the relatives of the deceased, President Fallières, the President of the Senate and of the Chamber, all the Ministers, many ex-Ministers and representatives of many authorities. The interior of the building was draped in black. At either side of the coffins tall torches were burning. On M. Berthelot's coffin lay the cross of the Legion of Honour. M. Briand, Minister of Education, delivered an oration in which he said: "M. Berthelot was one of those wonderful men who are an honour to all countries and to all time. He was great as a philosopher, as a political educationalist and as a man. Animated by the highest and noblest aims he required science to give her services to mankind. With him science became truly creative. His discoveries opened up an unlimited field to industry and placed him in the front rank of the benefactors of humanity." The Minister laid great stress on the fact that M. Berthelot preached a broad-minded, tolerant philosophy and as a private individual afforded as great an example as he did as a philosopher, teacher and citizen. He also recalled the estimable qualities of M. Berthelot's wife and concluded by saying that already the form of the great servant was transfigured by fame which had veiled his mortal body.

After this oration the coffins were brought into the outer hall, where M. Berthelot's relatives and representatives of the authorities ranged themselves on either side. General Dalstein, Military Governor of Paris, then advanced to M. Berthelot's coffin, saluted, and then placed himself at the head of the two divisions, which marched past the catafalque. During the march-past the colours were lowered before the biers.

At the close of the ceremony President Fallières, followed by the chief officials, left the Panthéon. The coffins were later conveyed into the crypt of the Panthéon, where they will remain until placed in the niches appointed for them.

THE MONTAGNINI PAPERS.

Among the papers confiscated in the residence of Mgr. Montagnini are, it is rumoured, certain letters of Cardinal Merry del Val in which he severely blames Mgr. Montagnini for having been unable to prevent the election as Deputy of Abbé Lemire, the Christian-Democrat. Abbé Lemire is a member of the Committee of Enquiry appointed to examine the papers.

THE CASE OF GENERAL BAILLOUD.

Paris, March 25.

With reference to the proceedings pending against General Bailloud, commanding the 20th Army Corps, it is rumoured that the Government is of opinion that no General, no matter what his seniority, should give public utterance to his opinion on foreign or domestic policy. Taking into consideration the General's past military career, only the mildest of the measures customary have been taken in his case. The Petit Parisien asserts that it was not the General's latest speech alone which caused his removal. Since his nomination as chief of the 20th Army Corps the General has frequently caused the War Minister anxiety by his indiscreet conduct. In his relations with politically influential persons General Bailloud had adopted an attitude to the War Minister incompatible with discipline. Many Conservative and Nationalist journals comment in severe terms on the disciplining of General Bailloud.

THE INTERLAKEN MURDER.

Thun, March 25.

This morning before the local criminal court was commenced the trial of the Russian female student, Tatjana Leontieff, who is accused of having murdered one Charles Müller of Paris in the dining-room of the Hotel Jungfrau. After the conclusion of the necessary formalities the indictment was read, the prisoner taking several notes. The court refused the request of counsel for the defence, Dr. Brüstlein, to allow the public unrestricted access to the court; owing to the inadequate capacity of the court only a limited number of persons provided with cards of admission were allowed to enter. The mother of the accused was present, clad in deep mourning. Today's proceedings were mainly occupied by the examination of the accused. Her statements as to her former career tallied almost exactly with the indictment. She stated that she had desired to kill M. Durnovo, not Müller. She had been incited to the deed by the maximalist party. As to the circumstances of the crime she refused all answer. In the course of the proceedings the accused stated that during the preliminary enquiry she had been stripped and ill-treated by the examining magistrate M. Lauerer. In consequence of this statement alleging insult and maltreatment, the President of the Court ordered that the examining magistrate and the police implicated in the matter shall be examined tomorrow.

A STRIKE LEADS TO SHOOTING.

Lausanne, March 25.

A strike of employes of Messrs. Kohler and Peter's chocolate factory in Vevey, Orbe and Bussigny, which started some days ago, has extended. Such serious disturbances took place today in Vevey and Orbe that the town council determined to employ troops to restore order.

In the afternoon a collision occurred between the police and the strikers who wished to force their way into the Nestlé factory. The police used their rifles. Four strikers, among them two girls, as well as two policemen were wounded.

THE NEW ROUMANIAN MINISTRY.

A new Cabinet has been formed in Bucharest with Dimitri Sturdza at its head as Prime Minister and Foreign Minister.

The first act of the Cabinet has been to dismiss all the Prefects, while one, the notorious Vasescu of Botoshani, has been arrested.

The Cabinet has issued a manifesto to the people announcing the foundation of a Agrarian Bank for buying and leasing State property to the peasants and also the abolition of many taxes which oppress the peasantry.

The Ministers Spiru, Haret and Mortzun are to proceed to Moldavia to personally interview the peasants.

THE ROUMANIAN UNREST.

The Frankfurter Zeitung learns from Bucharest that revolt is seething in the Rimnিকা-Sarat district of Wallachia. The peasants attacked country houses belonging for the most part to Roumanians, forced their way into the town of Rimnিকা-Sarat and fought with the soldiers. The town was practically destroyed as was Ivesi in Moldavia. Many houses belonging to Jews were demolished.

In Galatzi the situation is grave; desperate fighting has taken place between the troops and peasants who have found their way into the town. Four persons were killed in Pungeshti where the troops entered. While outrages on Jews have occurred in Stephanisti, the movement is steadily losing its anti-Semitic character.

UNREST IN THE ITALIAN ARMY.

The Tribuna learns by telegraph from Turin that on hearing that the application of the law whereby the circumstances of non-commissioned officers in the army are to be improved, would be postponed indefinitely, 150 non-commissioned officers of the Turin garrison assembled in a public hall and decided to complain about the alleged postponement to the Prime Minister and the Minister of War and to state that they would not rest until the law was a fait accompli. This unusual and unheard of behaviour has caused a painful sensation among the officers.

NEWS FROM RUSSIA.

THE DUMA.

The Duma has decided to sit four times a week, viz. on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, and that the sittings should open at 11 a. m. and close at 6 p. m. On Fridays the sittings are to begin at 2 p. m. in order to give opportunity to the Musselman Deputies to visit the Mosque.

At today's sitting M. Stachovitch (Cadet) demanded the immediate discussion of the proposal to abolish drum-head courts martial. (Interruption on the Right.) The President called a division and by a large majority the Duma decided to proceed to the instant discussion of the proposal. The debate became very lively, all the Ministers headed by M. Stolypin being present. Since 70 members have announced their intention of speaking, the debate will occupy all today's and probably several more sittings. The speakers of the Cadets and the Left made very violent speeches. Kasmin Karavajaff said that he protested against this shedding of blood, which was unknown even in China, and challenged the Prime Minister to at once issue orders by telegraph to the Governors General to stop carrying out the sentences of the drum-head courts martial, and to revise sentences already passed so far as they referred to penal servitude.

The Socialist and Labour members severely criticised the action of the Government. M. Balatt pointed out that not all the Governors General bore Russian names. Several speakers on the Right emphasised the necessity of extraordinary measures so long as the revolution was raging. The Moscow advocate M. Maklakoff made a long and detailed speech in which he said that the State must not resemble a revolutionary tribunal. Drum-head courts martial were an institution without precedent, they oppressed the law. They would crush the revolution, but only savages would remain over from the ruins. He was convinced that M. Stolypin, who desired to create a constitutional State, would have nothing to say against the abolition of a horrible institution which killed men like cattle and had nothing in common with justice. The speakers of the Poles, Mussulmans and Octobrists associated themselves with the Cadets in their demand for the abolition of these tribunals.

M. Jeslenki, Cadet, attacked the Government. He said they must ever speak more and more of such a monstrous institution as the drum-head court martial was and call the attention of the world to it.

The priest Tikhvinsky then spoke and shed light on the question from a Christian standpoint. He accused the Government of neglecting the teaching of Christ, and making themselves murderers. Turning to the two Bishops, who are members of the Duma, he urged them to condemn the death penalty. Bishop Eulogius, amid thunders of applause, said that he condemned every murder, and was opposed to the death penalty, but he begged the Duma to condemn also the deeds of the terrorists.

The House adjourned at 6 p. m.

THE MOROCCAN CRISIS.

Paris, March 25.

It is officially announced that the Government which is being caused grave anxiety by the position of Frenchmen living in Morocco, in today's extraordinary Cabinet Council will adopt very energetic measures. The two warships sent to Morocco have on board all necessary material for landing troops. Many journals regard the mere despatch of battleships as insufficient and consider that success will only result in action on the Algerian Moroccan frontier.

It is announced that a native quack doctor, who gave himself out as a physician, owing to professional envy hated Dr. Mauchamp and stirred up the mob against him.

The Cabinet Council determined to occupy Udscha until the Moroccan Government has made reparation for the murder of Dr. Mauchamp. This decision was arrived at in consequence of the persistent refusal of the Maghzen to carry out the 1901 and 1902 treaty and to satisfy the frequent demands of France with regard to assaults and crimes committed on Frenchmen on Moroccan soil.

The Liberté learns from Tangier that England also will take determined measures against the Maghzen owing to the attack on the English consulate. England will probably act in concert with France in the matter.

M. Pichon, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, said to a reporter: "We shall hold Udscha as a pledge until full satisfaction has been rendered". The Minister of War, General Picquart, has ordered General Liautet, acting Governor of Oran, to proceed with all speed to the occupation of Udscha.

GENERAL NEWS.

(From our London correspondent.)

King Edward witnessed the finals in a tournament on the golf course at Biarritz on Saturday, and presented the prizes to the winners, in fact his Majesty spent most of the day there, taking luncheon at the Clubhouse.

The Royal yacht "Victoria and Albert" sailed on Saturday from Portsmouth, having on board the string band of the Royal Marine Artillery, under Mr. B. S. Green, the conductor. One day Marseilles is said to be the starting point for their Majesties and the next Toulon. Doubtless there are good reasons for these contradictory announcements.

During the sojourn of the Dowager Empress of Russia with Queen Alexandra, both Royal sisters have thoroughly enjoyed the repose and country life at Sandringham and the Empress has undoubtedly derived considerable benefit from the changes.

Despite all the retirement of Sandringham, it must be understood that the mother of the Czar has throughout been strictly guarded, as the utmost precautions for her safety have continued to be made during her stay in England; her Majesty, however, has not been annoyed by the detectives' presence becoming too apparent.

An idea seems to prevail that King Edward will in the summer go to Canterets, the Pyrenean health resort, instead of Marienbad. It is expected that his Majesty will go through the "cure" there in August.

Early in April, Lord and Lady William Cecil will go to Madrid, where Lord William is to be in waiting on Princess Henry of Battenberg who, like her daughter the young Queen of Spain, has become most popular in that country.

At Lady Paget's dinner party last week, Prince Arthur of Connaught was present, the other guests including the Spanish Ambassador and Madame Villa Urrutia, Mr. and Madame Dominguez of the Argentine Legation, Prince and Princess Liechtenstein, military attaché to the Austrian Embassy, Mr. and Mrs. Hwfa Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Burns, Colonel Swaine and Mr. Nieuwans.

A sweetheart has turned up for the Tyrolean giantess, Miss Mariel, who is now on view at the Hippodrome in London. The young man, who is 24 years of age, is an Australian and also a giant as he stands 8ft. 8in., five inches taller than the lady with whom he has fallen in love.

An opportunity exists for an American millionaire to buy an old English semi-ruin. Hurstmonceux Castle is for sale and it is considered one of the finest old brick edifices in England. Hurstmonceux has for many years been one of the show places in Sussex and could be restored by a man of ample means, and made one of the finest residences in England.

There has been a remarkable exodus of people from London to the South of France and other parts of the Continent for the Easter recess, but they will nearly all return to England early in May when one of the most crowded seasons of late years is anticipated in London.

A sort of semi-panic occurred on the London Stock Exchange on Saturday, when liquidation of an almost reckless description took place. There was evidently a nervous dread of the coming settlement and wild talk of impending difficulties. Prices fell heavily in all markets, none being able to resist the depression.

No definite information was received in reply to a telegram to Reykjavik from Messrs. Roberts and Ruthven of Great Grimsby the owners of the steam trawler.

In a letter published in New York, Mr. Hudson Maxim, the great inventor and mechanical engineer, announced that he had invented a new safety detonating fuse which renders it possible to send an armour-piercing shell through armour, causing it to explode at the exact distance behind the armour desired by the gunner. He warns the United States to be prepared for war and warmly praises the efficiency of the British Navy.

The annual hockey match between England and Scotland took place at Bournville, Birmingham on Saturday last, when England won by 3 goals to 0. Consequently a record was obtained by England of four victories for the season without losing a goal, having previously beaten France by 14 to 0, Wales by 6 to 0, and Ireland by 5 to 0. The scorers were Jordan, Logan and Whitehouse.

The Cup semi-finals of the Association football have settled matters, and the finalists for the annual football carnival at the Crystal Palace both come from the North. Lancashire and Yorkshire fight out their battle for the Roses as of yore, Everton, the Cup-holders won from West Bromwich Albion and Sheffield Wednesday defeated Woolwich Arsenal.

Great sensation has been caused in the billiard world by the extraordinary break of 4,593 unfinished, made by Reece in his match against Weiss. The whole break occupied only some 98 minutes in all, and was obtained entirely by cannons, all of which, save 11, were made by means of the so-called "Anchor" stroke, which consists in getting the two object balls tight up against the cushion on either side of a corner pocket; by means of double kiss cannons the relative position of the three balls remains the same, and there seems no reason why such a break should ever finish, although, of course, great delicacy of touch is required.

The break in question easily beats all records at English billiards, though Peall, by means of the spot stroke, once ran well into his second thousand. The spot stroke was barred as monotonous for the spectators, and there can be little doubt that the "Anchor" stroke, when its novelty has worn off, will meet the same fate. When a player by means of these rapid cannons runs to his points within a quarter of an hour, spectators, who have paid a considerable sum for their seats, naturally are of opinion that they are not getting much for their money.

UNRELIABLE WITNESSES.

The testimony of eye-witnesses, even when made on oath, and when every suspicion of intentional false witness is out of the question, is not always reliable, as has been frequently shown of late by scientific experiments as well as by particularly striking cases that have actually occurred. A curious confirmation of this alleged unreliability of witnesses has recently occurred in the civil department of the first district court of Warsaw. A youth named Lucyan Zinny, 17 years of age, was accused of having stolen some articles from a house. Five witnesses were called to prove that Zinny had stolen the things and, after an abortive attempt at flight, had been arrested, after throwing the stolen articles away. Among the eye-witnesses was a portier's wife who gave her incriminating evidence most categorically; she stared at the youth in the dock and declared that it was he whom she had seen arrested in the street; she had recognised him at once. "Only Zinny has become rather thinner," she added. Two other witnesses testified as to their complete certainty of the prisoner's identity with the man who had carried the things out of the house.

When the cross-examination was at an end the presiding magistrate asked the prisoner what he had to say for himself, and he, with the utmost composure, replied that the matter had nothing whatever to do with him, for—he was not Zinny at all, but Franz Novakovski. He had been brought out of the prison with Zinny in order that he might hear sentence passed upon him for a crime for which he had been convicted two weeks previously. As, however, the testimony of the witnesses, on which he had been condemned, was, in his opinion, quite untrue, he had desired to show the court how much reliance was to be placed on eye-witnesses. For this reason he had agreed to change rôles with Zinny for a time. This was actually what had happened. The real Zinny was fetched from the waiting room and confirmed the truth of Novakovski's statement. On the other hand the district attorney, the magistrate and a court servant who had been present at the proceedings against Novakovski asserted that it was the man in the dock and not Zinny that had been tried, from which it was apparent that all three officials had seen Novakovski for the second time, without recognising him. The situation became ever more involved. The jailer was summoned and he endorsed the statement that it was Novakovski and not Zinny, who was in the dock. The most curious feature of the case was that there was not a shadow of resemblance between the two men. In the end the whole matter was referred to the examining magistrate, who was charged with establishing Zinny's identity. But it can be imagined that the statement of the man in the dock made a hardly agreeable impression on the witnesses who suddenly found themselves in danger of having committed perjury!

MARK TWAIN AS A BOY.

In the current North American Review Mark Twain gives some reminiscences of his early life:—

Doctors, he says, were not called, in cases of ordinary illness; the family's grandmother attending to those. Every old woman was a doctor, and gathered her own medicines in the woods, and knew how to compound doses that would stir the vitals of a cast-iron dog. And then there was the "Indian doctor"; a grave savage, remnant of his tribe, deeply read in the mysteries of nature and the secret properties of herbs; and most backwoodsmen had high faith in his powers, and could tell of wonderful cures achieved by him.

In Mauritius, away off yonder in the solitudes of the Indian Ocean, there is a person who answers to our Indian doctor of the old times. He is a negro, and has had no teaching as a doctor, yet there is one disease which he is master of and can cure, and the doctors can't. They send for him when they have a case. It is a child's-disease of a strange and deadly sort, and the negro cures it with a herb medicine which he makes, himself, from a prescription which has come down to him from his father and grandfather. He will not let any one see it. He keeps the secret of its components to himself, and it is feared that he will die without divulging it; then there will be consternation in Mauritius. I was told these things by the people there in 1896.

We had the "faith doctor," too, in those early days—a woman. Her speciality was toothache. She was a farmer's old wife, and lived five miles from Hannibal. She would lay her hand on the patients jaw and say "Believe!" and the cure was prompt. Mrs. Utterback. I remember her very well. Twice I rode out there behind my mother, horseback, and saw the cure performed. My mother was the patient.

Dr. Meredith removed to Hannibal, by and by, and was our family physician there, and saved my life several times. Still, he was a good man, and meant well. Let it go.

I was always told that I was a sickly and precarious and tiresome and uncertain child, and lived mainly on allopathic medicines during the first seven years of my life. I asked my mother about this, in her old age—she was in her eighty-eighth year—and said:—

"I suppose that during all that time you were uneasy about me?"
 "Yes, the whole time."
 "Afraid I wouldn't live?"
 After a reflective pause—ostensibly to think out the facts—
 "No—afraid you would."

A CLOSE SHAVE!

Sir Douglas Straight told an amusing story at the dinner of the Journeymen Hairdressers' Trade Society. He remembered, when a young barrister, going into a barber's shop to be shaved. He was a little startled to see the lady behind the counter staring at him from time to time through the glass door. When he got outside the shop a policeman said, "I am very glad to find you have come out," explaining that his anxiety was due to the fact that the barber came out of a lunatic asylum the previous week, and his relatives were wondering whether they would have to send him back again!

THE GRAND NATIONAL.

Eremon's Grand National was in every way a notable one. He led from start to finish, and his jockey only had the use of one stirrup iron for the last four miles of the perilous journey. Many steeplechasers possess nautical names, and jockeys are called "pilots"; never was there better "steering" than Newey's on Friday. Having to jump—improperly balanced in the saddle—Newey had to get his mount up to his jumps in the best way possible, and the horse hopped over each mammoth fence, open ditch, or water, like a bird over a walking-stick.

Newey won the Grand National, but Eremon certainly helped him, and the honours must be divided. The horse saved the man, and the willing animal escaped injury from the attentions of the riderless Rathvale through the horseman reaching out and slashing with his whip at the aggressor.

Mr. Stanley Howard must be congratulated on his great achievement of taking the Grand National with his first and only racehorse. Many men spend a lifetime acquiring 'chasers on the offchance of gaining the National Hunt blue riband, and here is Mr. Howard taking it straight away at the first try.

Luck is indeed a powerful factor in racing. We had the instance many years ago of the late Sir James Miller acquiring Sainfoin four weeks before the Derby was run, and winning it. And yet, some lay down the law that for a man to win the Derby he must breed his horses; others vary this by asserting that a man cannot buy an old horse to win a National, but that he must acquire young ones and nurse them up for the cross-country business. Sainfoins and Eremons are the exceptions which prove the rule.

Well, the "National" is over, and there must inevitably follow the many inquests as to what might have been. The unfortunate ones were undoubtedly Bouchal Ogue and Extravagance. The latter was interfered with when taking off for the water jump by one of the many riderless horses, and Red Lad knocked down the former.

It is curious how horses fall into line even when without a rider. One or two on Friday, when they approached the paddock stayed there, but not so Rathvale—he went on fencing faultlessly with perhaps only 5lb. on his back. Horses presumably share the excitement of their riders, and hammer away at it, and—who knows but what they think they are doing great deeds! It must be taken as certain that an animal in a steeplechase has his "blood up," otherwise, why does he systematically take jump for jump beside one with a jockey still in the saddle? He may remember his "schooling" days; in any case they stick at it, and know when to pull up too—in the latter sign of sagacity there is something singular and deeply interesting.

HOOLIGANS OF PARIS.

Paris appears to be a little weary of its Hooligans, and just a trifle impatient with those who should control them. A Bill has now been introduced into the Chamber of Deputies for arming the public powers with more effective weapons. One of the chief proposals is to render exceedingly difficult the existence of men of a certain parasitic class. Meanwhile there is some recreation between the police and the magistrates. The former say that men known to themselves as belonging to the criminal classes are, when arrested, released by the magistrates on the production of bogus labour references. The magistrates say that the police are partial in their actions, favouring criminals who sometimes give them hints.

A VILLAGE HORROR.

A fearful crime has just been brought to light in the French village of Vanlay, near Bar-sur-Seine, in the Aube department. On Tuesday morning a house occupied by M. Thuiller, a man of independent means, in a small way, and his wife, was found to have been burned down during the night, and as there were no traces of the occupants, fears that they had perished in the flames were entertained. Investigation of the still smouldering ruins was at once vigorously begun, and finally the two dead bodies were found. They were badly charred, but medical examination showed that fire had not been the cause of their death. They had been murdered, and the police theory is that after killing them as they slept the murderers had set fire to the house to hide their crime.

Paris, March 26. The deputy, M. Dubief, a friend of the murdered Dr. Mauchamp, will have an interview this morning with the Minister for Foreign Affairs, M. Pichon, with reference to the interpellation, which he intends to bring forward in the Chamber. He stated to a representative of the Matin that he will ask the Minister what measures he proposes to take for the protection of Frenchmen in Morocco, and that he hopes the answer will be satisfactory; otherwise, he will proceed with his interpellation.
