ALARMING REPORTS OF STORMS AND FLOODS.

HEAVY STORMS IN ENGLAND.

Heavy rainfall in the Midlands and the North has caused numerous floods, which have done considerable mischief in the fields and among the cattle. Several villages are cut off from communication.

FLOODS IN DERBYSHIRE.

Miles of land are under water as the result of Wednesday night's heavy rainfall in North Derbyshire. Such towns as Matlock have escaped, but villages to the north are isolated and flooded. The damage done is unusually heavy. The Derwent is in flood, and its tributaries are causing damage.

Last Thursday morning Claycross Tunnel, one of the longest on the Midland Railway, was so flooded that traffic was seriously impeded, and the mails from the north had to be sent via the Erewash Valley. Miners have been warned, in view of the low state of the barometer, to carefully watch for dangerous accumulations of gas in coal workings.

CHANNEL STORMS.

London, October 18.

A severe storm is raging on the East and South coast. The Channel steamers are suffering considerably. A steamer which made its way into Dover harbour was thrown upon the Prince of Wales Pier. Serious damage has been caused to the stern of the vessel.

SEVERE FLOODS IN ITALY.

Venice, October 18.

The Adige, Brenta and Piave have risen considerably owing to severe rain-storms. Several districts have been inundated, while the roads are blocked up in places owing to landslips. Seven bridges have collapsed. Here a house has fallen in, and others are in danger. The rain continues.

Milan, October 18.

In consequence of the storms, Lake Maggiore is higher than it has been since 1872. The lower parts of the towns of Pallanza and Intra are flooded. Lake Como is reported to have risen to such an extent that the town of Como is partly under water. The Po is also rising; in some parts the country is flooded, and much damage has been done.

FLOODS AT LAIBACH.

It is reported from Laibach that owing to the heavy downfall of rain the lower part of the town

SEISMIC DISTURBANCES.

Berkeley (California), October 18.

Professor Buscher of the Observatory of California University stated yesterday that the centre of the seismic disturbances observed on the 16th of this month lay about a thousand miles south of Berkeley in mid-ocean, somewhere between Hawaii and the south coast of Mexico. The disturbance was of the kind known to experts as a subaqueous earthquake, which is usually attended by a tidal wave. Professor Buscher declares that the intensity of the disturbance was far more severe in the region of its centre than the earthquakes in California, Jamaica, Valparaiso and Mexico.

ENGLISH LADY ROBBED AND THROWN OVERBOARD FROM AN U. S. STEAMER.

The catarrhal symptoms have slightly abated.

OUTRAGE IN THE TRANSVAAL.

PRESIDENT KRÜGER'S GRAVE PROFANED. Johannesburg, October 18. A painful sensation has been caused here by the profanation of President Krüger's grave in the churchyard of Pretoria. The marble statue has been thrown down from its pedestal and is lying about a yard away from the grave. The shoulders and nose of the figure have been injured. There is no reason to consider the outrage an act of vengeance or race-hatred. Circumstances point much more to the presumption that the theft of the monument had been intended in order to obtain a reward for its replacement. The police are engaged on the matter.

SOUTH AFRICAN MINES.

NATIVES PHYSICALLY UNSATISFACTORY. Johannesburg, October 16. Mr. Raymond Schumacher, speaking at the Glen Deep Mine meeting today, stated that work had been disorganized by the repatriation of the Chinese. In September, he said, it had been possible to replace Chinese by natives drawn chiefly from Cape Colony, but these were inferior as a class, not good workers, and expensive. The profits had fallen from £ 10,000 monthly to £ 2,700 in September, while the working costs had risen 5s. per ton.

Busch & Co. Waisenhaus Strasse 25. Imported cigars. Havannah cigars at old prices inspite of a 10% increase of cost.

Natives from the Central African provinces, on whom the mines would henceforth also partially have to rely, were, he added, physically unsatisfactory, and had an appalling death rate. The average mortality on the Rand in 1906 was 74 per 1,000, while that of the British Central African natives alone was 98 per 1,000. The mortality among the Chinese on the Glen Deep Mine from all causes was 12 per 1,000.

CANADA AND THE EMPIRE.

Ottawa, October 16. Addressing the students at Trinity College, Port Hope, Ontario, today, Earl Grey, the Governor-General, in reply to an address of welcome, said it was only a question of time before Canada became the most important unit in the British Empire. At the present moment the people of the United Kingdom were bearing the chief burden of the Empire, but a time was coming when Canada, by reason of its size and population, and also, he hoped, by reason of its moral influence, would be able to take a paramount share in controlling the greatest Empire ever known in the history of the world.

RED INDIAN BARBARISM.

APPALLING STORY FROM CANADA.

A correspondent of the Tribune cables under date October 16 from Ottawa that the trial of two Indian chiefs of the Salteaux tribe at Norway House, in the Keewatin district, has brought to light a terrible story of wholesale strangulation and burning practised by the natives to rid themselves of the sick and useless members of the tribe. One of the chiefs strangled himself before the trial ended, and the other has been sentenced to be hanged. Two brothers, named Eyelids and Angus Rae, described five cases of strangulation and burning in which they themselves participated. The bodies in two instances were quietly buried, while the other three victims were thrown upon a huge fire.

In one instance the strangulation was only partial, and, indeed, was not intended to be complete, for the victim was bound with leather thongs and placed over a fire until the thongs burst with the heat. The poor creature, enveloped in flames, then ran howling through the woods, and was afterwards despatched with shot guns by his friends. The crimes in question occurred in a remote part of the northern wilds towards the Hudson Bay settlement, which has never been thoroughly explored by whites.

AMERICAN NEWS.

THE FAR EASTERN DIFFICULTY.

Mr. Taft is having a very good time in Manila, says the New York correspondent of the Globe. Great popular demonstrations have been held in his honour, and it is claimed that the enthusiasm displayed affords proof that the Filipinos have become reconciled to American rule. The opening ceremonies at the first sitting of the Legislative Assembly went off well, and Mr. Taft delivered exactly the sort of speech that had been expected of him in the circumstances. That is to say, his remarks leave no doubt that the U. S. will hold on to the Philippines so long as they have a ship and a soldier to help maintain their proprietary rights in the islands. The Filipinos will, of course, be given all the blessings and privileges of self-government when they have shown themselves fit for them—a comfortable and judiciously elastic arrangement.

Meantime, while all is thus of roseate hue in Manila, several of the New York newspapers of undoubted popular influence continue to discuss with a frankness and abandon only possible, one would say, in this most free of all free countries, the possibility, even the probability, of a war between the United States and Japan—a conflict which it is not denied would involve a gigantic struggle for the mastery of the Philippines. It is all very well for the Administration organs in the daily Press to denounce the "scaremongers" and protest against their methods, and deny their facts. The point that is really becoming clear is that the man in the street is getting accustomed to regard Japan as the natural rival of the United States for commercial and political supremacy in the Far East, and to discuss the possibility of a fight with the Japanese without apprehension, and almost with relish. To that extent the situation has changed for the worse within the present year, and the jingoes may claim to have made considerable progress.

New York, October 17. The Sun, which is known as an anti-Governmental journal, today publishes another long alarmist article, declaring that America's chief reason for sending a squadron to the Pacific is to prepare for war with Japan.

ANOTHER SAN FRANCISCO INCIDENT.

Tokio, October 16. A special edition of the papers was published here late tonight dealing in a sensational manner with the encounter between Japanese and a white mob at San Francisco yesterday, when some property was destroyed and a Japanese was fatally injured. The Foreign Office has no information on the subject, and is not inclined to express an opinion. One official declared in conversation that if the dispatch were correct, it was merely fresh evidence that the disturbances are due to the action of irresponsible persons.

THE NEGRO PROBLEM.

LORD ROSEBERY'S AND MR. CARNEGIE'S VIEWS.

The Earl of Rosebery presided on Wednesday night at Edinburgh during an address on "The Negro Problem", with which Mr. Andrew Carnegie inaugurated the winter lecture session of the Philosophical Institution.

Mr. Carnegie controverted the notion that the negro is lazy, and showed that on the contrary the race is engaged in every field of human activity, even that of the newspaper press, some of its productions being described as creditable to the profession of journalism. Its capacity of producing at intervals those exceptional men who are the glory of a nation was another evidence given that it is an advancing people.

The question used to be: What can be done with the negroes? The question now is: How many more of them and of other workers can be obtained? The negro had become of immense economic value, and is indispensable where he is. (Cheers.) What he had described was, he thought, encouraging. Yet he admitted that it was trifling with what remained to be done. He was sanguine that the result would be a respectable, educated, intelligent race of coloured citizens.

Lord Rosebery, in moving a vote of thanks to Mr. Carnegie, spoke of him as a man who scattered benefactions behind him as a locomotive scattered sparks.

A. K. JANSON, American Dentist. Graduate from Chicago College of Dental Surgery Dresden, Prager Strasse 10, 1. Specialist in straightening teeth.

Dealing with the subject of the lecture, Lord Rosebery said: All the statistics given by Mr. Carnegie by no means solve the matter. They show that you are only at the commencement of the solution of this problem. Might not that period of tutelage which he alluded to as necessary in India have been extended with advantage to the negro races? I take it that when they were admitted to the privilege of citizenship ninety per cent. were illiterate. I take it that even on your own showing—which may be perhaps considered optimistic—there are still some forty-seven per cent. illiterate. Well, does it not seem to you that you added to the franchise in the general impulse of the moment men who were not wholly competent. To the question, "Am I not a man and a brother?" a wise answer would have been, "A man, yes; a brother, yes; but till you have proved your fitness for the suffrage, a fellow-citizen, no".

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY.

NEW SERVICE OPENED.

An official announcement of the commencement of a new era in communication, by the opening of the wireless Transatlantic service with a charge of only fivepence per word, is contained in the following letter from the managing director of Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Company:—"I beg to inform you that our high-power stations at Clifden (Connemara) and at Glace Bay (Nova Scotia), constructed for commercial communication between the United Kingdom and the continent of North America, were opened for a Press service on Thursday morning, October 17."

The rates will be 5d. a word for ordinary messages as compared with the cable companies' shilling tariff, and of 2½ d. a word for Press dispatches against the cable's 5d. These charges are for the Atlantic transmission only, and the overland tariffs must be added.

OPERATOR FOUND DEAD IN TRANSMITTING ROOM.

Great expectations are being based in New York on the announcements that Mr. Marconi has completed his preliminary trials of the trans-Atlantic possibilities of his instruments, and that a regular public service has been commenced.

But incidentally interest has been aroused by other possibilities of the system, for, according to a report from the New York correspondent of the Daily Chronicle, an operator named Aldaker was found dead in the transmitting room at the Marconi station at South Wellfleet, Massachusetts. How he died is not yet satisfactorily explained, as no part of his body was in contact with the apparatus, but some believe that the electric current in the chamber is so strong that it can kill without contact with metals.

JAPAN AND KOREA.

CHARGE AGAINST A BRITISH EDITOR.

Seoul, October 16.

Mr. E. S. Bethell, a British subject, who is editor of the Korea Daily News and also of a journal printed in the Korean language and entitled the Daihan Shimpo, appeared before the British Consular Court today on a summons charging him with using the columns of his papers to incite the people of Korea to riot. Articles were read in Court containing a bitter criticism of the preparations made for the reception of the Japanese Crown Prince. The Consul bound over Mr. Bethell in a heavy security to be of good conduct in the future, and warned him that a repetition of the offence would result in the forfeiture of his security and probably in deportation.

Mr. Douglas Story writes to the Daily Chronicle: Mr. E. S. Bethell is a journalist of wide experience and a publicist of sound judgment in the affairs of the Far East. In his newspaper, the Korea Daily News, he has maintained a standard of calm, judicial criticism of the Japanese which has not commended itself to the powers behind the new throne in Korea. For two years past every endeavour has been made to entrap him in the meshes of political intrigue, but until now nothing has availed to provide his accusers with an indictment. He has written nothing he could not prove.

For months Mr. Bethell has been expecting arrest, and I have in my possession letters providing for the contingency which has now arisen. In his last letter to me, dated June 9th, 1907, Mr. Bethell finishes, "Please be guarded in your reply to me, as my letters are frequently opened."

I have before me a copy of Mr. Bethell's leading article of Aug. 30th, 1907. The article is entitled "The War in Korea," and the following excerpt will show its character: "The above heading may read curiously to many people; but on a second reading its truth is apparent. There is war raging in Southern Korea, and it is of the most difficult kind to suppress, for it is guerilla warfare. We deeply regret its existence. It is futile; and it is bound to end in the defeat of the Koreans and the institution of drastic laws and the suppression of the people who survive the struggle. At the same time we can only say that it is palpable to all that no other result but guerilla warfare could be expected from men who are patriots and who feel keenly the stings inflicted upon them by the Japanese Government.

"By adopting different methods to what she had taken, Japan could have obtained the same hold on Korea that she has now. The forced abdication of the Emperor was unwise. The disbandment of the army at one stroke was madness. It has plunged—and will continue to do so—misery, desolation, and slaughter into thousands of homes. Villages of over 100 houses each have been burnt to the ground and not a living thing that failed to escape has been left alive. This is not the way to acquire a country; and if Japan thinks that it is, a still more bitter awakening may be in store for her."

To read the word "sedition" into such an article were impossible to those unacquainted with Japanese methods in Korea.

PLOT. Prince Tamino is implored by the Queen of the Night to save her daughter from the High Priest, Sarastro. Accompanied by Papageno, he sets out. Papageno has been punished for telling lies, by having a lock set on his lips. The three ladies of the Queen of the Night take it off, on his promising to lie no more, and give him an instrument made of silver bells, and to Tamino they give a golden flute. These instruments are to be played if their possessors are in danger. The Queen's daughter, Pamina, is being courted by Monostatos, a negro servant of Sarastro's. Papageno rescues Pamina, but is pursued by Monostatos and others, whereas Sarastro plays his bells and all begin to dance. Tamino reaches Sarastro's castle, where he and Pamina cannot be united until they have given proof of their constancy. Tamino agrees to undergo any test, though the Queen of the Night tries to deter him. Tamino is initiated into the mysteries of Isis. Pamina asks to share his further trials, and together they walk through fire and water unscathed, while Tamino plays his flute. Papageno, being lonely, is about to hang himself, but, being reminded of his bells, he rings them, and Papagena appears, the counterpart of himself. The Queen of the Night tries, with the aid of Monostatos, to regain Pamina, but in vain. Pamina is united to Tamino and Papageno to Papagena.

Lillas Pastia, innkeeper	Herr Seiter.

PLOT. Don José, a soldier, is loved by a peasant girl Micaëla, but he forgets her when he meets the handsome gipsy Carmen, to whom he becomes betrothed; Carmen has been arrested; but Don José connives at her escape and promises to meet her at the inn kept by Lillas Pastia. Meeting her there with the other gipsies, in his infatuation Don José deserts; but the fickle Carmen transfers her affection to the bullfighter Escamillo. He and Don José fight. Escamillo is worsted, but Carmen stays her former lover's arm. Micaëla persuades Don José to come and see his dying mother. A bullfight takes place in Madrid, and Carmen, though warned of Don José's threats of vengeance, determines to be present; but at the moment of Escamillo's victory Don José stabs Carmen through the heart.

LOCAL.

The Symphony Concert at the Royal Opera on Friday evening. In the Symphony Concerts of the B series one is sometimes at a loss to know which of the productions is to be regarded as the clou of the occasion; whether the solo performances or the "novelty". This time there could be no doubt on that point, as, although Emil Sauer has often delighted the Dresden public with his poetic art, he has always something new to say. And here again he bewitched the hearts of his hearers by his brilliant performance of Schumann's Concerto in A-minor, as if he was disclosing something never heard before. His playing is now so wonderfully matured, so permeated by the life-giving essence of true art, his technique is so delicately wrought and so clear, that the composer's work of art becomes a new work of art of the virtuoso, or rather that the artist-executant grows together with the artist-creator into an artistic unit of highest intensity. Following this incomparably brilliant performance, the "novelty" of the evening, the introduction to Karl Goldmark's opera "Götz von Berlichingen" fell flat. Karl Goldmark completed this opera two years ago when he was 73 years old, and that circumstance prescribes forbearance in forming a judgment as to the merits of the work. The lightness of fancy which otherwise has always had a dazzling effect in Goldmark's compositions here becomes lame and flimsy; routine and skilful elaboration, contrapuntal welding of unimportant themes, must help out the work where luxuriance of invention fails. Here gold does not mark the composition as a whole, but brass. Particularly brassy is the Finale, which is worked up to an "infernal din" that cannot, with all its noise, conceal the poverty of the musical ideas. Nevertheless, the excellent performance by the incomparable orchestra under Herr v. Schuch's spirited leadership saved much that would under other circumstances have been irretrievably lost.

Beethoven's immortal C-minor symphony opened the concert, and was again carried to a brilliant triumph by the efficient troop of artists, though it must be noted that Herr v. Schuch treated the first part with striking conventionality and so marred the monumental grandeur of the structure.—M. N.

Pianoforte Recital of Vladimir Drossdoff. In the many pianists who year by year appear in the concert hall there is almost without exception one virtue to be recognized: that of respectable technical ability. The young 24-year old pianist Vladimir Drossdoff, who wishes now to exhibit in the concert rooms of Europe what he has learnt at the St. Petersburg Conservatorium, possesses that virtue, and still more: an ardent temperament that storms forward and carries all before it, and a very considerable musical intelligence. It is therefore not even a pity that the playing of the young artist shows many weaknesses which can only be overcome as he advances to maturity, since just such a want of strict correctness indicates an inward impulse that in future is likely to prove the chief strength of this impetuous young artist. His playing now stimulates like young fermenting and effervescent wine, or laughing sunshine abruptly banished by a shower of hail in April. The E-minor Sonata of Beethoven and Chopin's Ballade in A-flat suffered specially from these deficiencies, torn and lashed to pieces as they were, with a woe-want of style. But he who can play the G-minor Fantasie and Fugue of Bach so grandly as Herr Drossdoff played it, may certainly claim to be taken very seriously as an artist. And just because in this case the technical difficulties were overcome with playful grace, may the technical imperfections and inaccuracies that marred his other performances be laid to the account of the artistic ferment to which this hopeful young pianist is for the moment in subjection. M. N.

Although the sun is blazing down on Prager Strasse at midday, and the weather generally makes us rather think of summer and light dresses, than of winter and furs, the shop-window of the furrier Carl Peters, Prager Strasse 52, reminds us that it will not be long before the aspect of the street, with its promenading public, will be more sombre. To counteract this sombre hue produced by warm winter clothes and their colour it will be well to avail oneself of the opportunity to inspect, and purchase of, the large stock of real furs, especially Ermine scarves and bows, Sable, Mink, Broadtail, Persian Lamb garments or muffs, and the variety of natural dyed skins, Fox stoles &c. Herr Peters' stock embraces all grades of furs, from the most expensive to the cheapest; but all he shows and sells is good, and fair in price. Ladies are invited not only to be satisfied with a peep at the show-windows, but to go into the shop and inspect the stock—a courteous reception is assured to them.

Kapellmeister Olsen may be congratulated on the success of his opening concert on Thursday evening. The Hall and galleries were well tenanted (and only too brilliantly lighted) and the reception of the various numbers must have convinced Herr Olsen and his orchestra that their efforts were thoroughly appreciated, as indeed they well deserved to be. To one who had not heard the orchestra for some time—at least in the Gewerbehause, in certain parts of which the Akustik is extraordinarily fine—it seemed that the orchestral tone had improved in a marked degree in the direction of refinement; and this impression was confirmed by the leading instruments which, in all the different voices and classes—wood, brass, and strings—were played with much delicacy of tone and expression. The description "a good copy of a great original" would apply strictly to all the performances of familiar pieces; among which were Weber's "Oberon" Overture, Wagner's Overture to "Tannhäuser", a selection of "tone pictures" from Mozart's "Figaros Hochzeit" (this elicited enthusiastic and prolonged applause) and the Overture to "Mignon", in which "Kennst du das Land" was quite touchingly "sung" on the tenor horn. Kapellmeister Olsen has secured, a good harpist in Fräulein Annie Schindling, and a talented young 'cellist in Herr Moth; both of whom played solo numbers with the orchestra. Other pieces which were admirably characterised and performed with great nicety were a "Lyric Suite in four movements" by Grieg, and Filippucci's "Serenade lointaine" for strings. The amount of enjoyment under comfortable conditions afforded by a concert of this kind is very cheaply purchased at the moderate cost of the admission ticket, if five or six are bought at a time.—G.

At the Royal Conservatory of Music two charity concerts—one on November 13 and the other on January 18—will be given, as last year.

On Tuesday, October 22, Miss Watson will give the first of her lectures in the picture gallery, which, as in the past, will take place every Tuesday at 11.30 throughout the winter. These lectures which supplement and illustrate the preparatory lectures held in Miss Watson's rooms at the same hour on Saturday mornings, have for their object not only the study of the masterpieces of the Dresden Gallery, but follow the course of development of painting as here represented. This first lecture, as an introduction to Italian painting will take up the works of the fifteenth century and previous to that time with a look, for the sake of comparison, at the Byzantine pictures. The class will meet in the rotunda of the gallery.

The third of the lectures in Modern Art which are given on Wednesdays at 11.30 in Miss Watson's rooms at Gutzkowstrasse 33, II. will be devoted to the French masters, Courbet and Millet. The lecture will be amply illustrated by prints and photographs.

CONVERSATION IN THE SCHLOSS STRASSE.

"Well, Paul, what is amusing you now?"

"I have been told something very funny by the editor of the D. R."

"And what may that be?"

"One of their readers—but no, let us go into the Stadt Gotha; I am hungry and thirsty, and there is always something good to be had there."

"All right, I'm with you. But the D. R.'s funny tale?"

"Well, at least one of its readers seems to object to my having a talk with you every Sunday, although very evidently he doesn't understand English and can't possibly appreciate what we have to say to each other."

"That is amusing. Ha! Ha!"

There will be two performances in the Central Theatre today: in the afternoon at half past 3 o'clock at reduced prices, and at 8 o'clock in the evening at the ordinary prices.
