GENERAL NEWS.

NEWS FROM ENGLAND.

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

London, July 17.

Mr. Staveley-Hill asked the First Lord of the Admiralty what rule or practice governed communications sent by the Admiralty to the Press; who framed these communications, and who was the responsible authority for them; were they invariably sent to the Press generally, or only to certain newspapers; and, in the latter case, on what principle was the selection made. Mr. McKenna replied that official communications with the Press, apart from advertisements, were placed in a room set apart for the purpose at the Admiralty to which all the newspaper representatives had access, or in the case of special communications they were sent under cover to the principal press agencies, and newspapers which had offices in London.

Mr. McKenna, replying to Mr. Du Cros, said that the longest continuous period spent in harbour by the Mediterranean Fleet during 1907 was three months, and during 1908 one month; but individual ships came out during such period to perform gunnery and torpedo exercises.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald asked the President of the Board of Trade whether his attention had been drawn to certain prosecutions for the purpose of restraining the British manufacturers of cigars from using boxes with labels printed in Spanish as being contrary to the law of merchandise marks; whether his attention had also been drawn to the fact that cigars in boxes, with labels printed in Spanish, were imported from countries where Spanish was not more commonly spoken than it is in Great Britain; and whether he proposed, in view of the handicap which this placed upon the British manufacturer, to equalise the administration of the law between British manufacturer and foreign importer? Mr. Churchill said his attention had been called to the prosecutions referred to. He entirely agreed there should be equality in the administration of the law between British and foreign manufacturers. He was now in communication with the Customs on the subject.

The House went into Committee of Supply on the Civil Services and Revenue Departments Estimates.

On a vote of £11,821,571 for the salaries and expenses of the Post Office, including telegraphs and telephones, Mr. S. Buxton made a humorous speech. He said that the revenue of the Post Office during the past year was 22½ millions, and the expenditure 18¼ millions. The estimates for the coming year was revenue 23 millions, and expenditure 19½ millions. What was required at the present moment was something in the nature of a stimulus which would increase the postal revenue, and this could be done in one or two ways. The most important, and the one which he advocated, was a general election (laughter). This was very profitable to the Post Office. Public excitement in any particular question was also an addition, and he would therefore say—without expressing any view with regard to the question of women's suffrage or the Licensing Bill—to those who were opposing or advocating these measures, "agitate so long as you do it in the proper channel, namely, by means of the penny post" (laughter). Either those who supported or those who opposed women's suffrage or the Licensing Bill would be doing something to bring to an end this iniquitous Government (laughter), and at the same time were doing something to assist the revenue of the country (laughter).

As to postal crazes, he said that latterly it had been picture postcards, but that had been falling off, and he suggested last year to the public that they should direct their superfluous energy to some new form of craze which would be profitable to the postal revenue. They responded to the appeal, and had devoted themselves to limericks. As a result, a very large number of 6d. postal orders had been bought, and it had also involved a very considerable amount of correspondence. The amount that was brought in by the 6d. postal orders during the last six months was 14 times over the average. That particular craze was now disappearing. He was speaking from a post office point of view. He had been accused of gambling, but people wanted to buy his 6d. orders, and he had got to supply them. He now wanted some public craze which would be profitable, and which would pass the scrutiny of the Anti-Gambling League and the Manchester Watch Committee (loud laughter).

As regards the postal expenditure, the matter was not so satisfactory, because while the revenue had shown considerable elasticity by increasing over two millions, the expenditure had risen by a larger amount. This was due to ordinary automatic increases due to the increased amount of matter which went through the Post Office. Buildings, telephones, and increase in rates of pay had added to the expenditure. The ultimate additions to pay will mean an increase of £1,000,000 a year. The surplus available for the Exchequer had not materially increased in the last few years. Really the only profitable head of revenue was the penny stamp; that was the sheet anchor of the postal revenue, and the sales continued to increase. But the telephone, which was cutting naturally into the telegraph system, was doing something to diminish in big towns the number of letters which were written. The telegraph was carried on at a great loss, and they were determined that the telephone system should be placed and should remain on a paying basis. Dealing with complaints respecting the telephone, he said if there was any mistake in respect of the charge for calls the automatic check gave the balance in favour of the user. People were really not aware how much their telephones were used. He read a letter just received from a user who had complained of overcharge, in which he said he had solved the mystery. "I find that the housemaid has been using my telephone, without my authority, to communicate with her young man" (laughter). The underground telegraph work was making steady progress, and as to wireless telegraphy the Government did not wish to put themselves in the position revealed in respect to the telegraph and the telephone. They were not going to allow a monopoly to grow up, and they had therefore started two experimental stations, and were now erecting a commercial station which would enable the Post Office at any moment, if so desired, to extend their operations without having to buy up companies and monopolies. Dealing with various postal reforms effected during his two and a half years of office, he said he had secured £500,000 from the Treasury for the benefit of the home, colonial, and foreign services.

He was glad to find the penny postage to America had been received with general satisfaction. In future, they would have the same rate of postage to all English speaking nations. In future, a letter of ½ oz. which before cost 2½ d. would now pay 1d.; a 1oz. letter would cost 1d. against 5d. now, and a 2oz. letter which now cost 10d. would after October 1 cost only 2d. On the general question of the treatment of the staff, the right hon. gentleman said he quite agreed that the Post Office should be a model employer of labour. They were still endeavouring to improve the conditions of the postal service, and act upon the recommendations of the Hobhouse Committee. In a large number of cases the scales of pay were improved, and in every case the conditions of the postal servants had been improved. For those improvements the Committee was asked to vote a very large sum of money, and that money, he believed, would be readily voted (cheers). The Post Office was a wonderful organisation, and he was very proud to be its head. This great public department was a credit to the State and a splendid example in its members of loyalty to the public service (cheers).

STREET FIGHTING AT BOMBAY.

Bombay, July 18.

Fourteen thousand native factory hands, all of whom are employed full time, for some reason or other went on strike yesterday, and attacked other factories, the employes of which had refused to join the malcontents. The windows of two factories were shattered with stones. Later in the evening the police, while attempting to rescue two Europeans who had taken refuge from the fury of the mob in a café, were stoned by the strikers, and were compelled to use their firearms. A cavalry charge dispersed the crowd, no resistance being offered to the soldiers. It has not yet been ascertained whether there were any fatalities or other casualties.

Bombay, July 18.

The two Europeans who sought refuge in a café from the mob are engineers. They were severely injured by stones, several European police officers also being struck. The majority of the strikers has resumed work, but two thousand labourers still continue to agitate. Military guards are stationed in the quarters where order has not yet been restored. German competitors at the Olympic Sports now proceeding in London are gaining a fair measure of success. A telegram received yesterday informs us that the first heats of the Amateur Diving Competition were won by Germans, Herren Behrens and Geidzig. The final heat was to take place today. Another German competitor, Herr Bieberstein, won the final heat in the 100 yards swimming contest, covering the distance in 84 1/2 seconds.

Count Zeppelin has announced his intention of not publishing the probable date of his next ascent. The damage to his air-ship is said to be not so extensive as at first reported, but the recharging of the balloons with gas will take at least three weeks.

On the occasion of his 70th birthday Count Zeppelin received hundreds of letters and telegrams; honours were conferred upon him in all manner of form, and even now corporations and scientific institutions vie with each other to give proof of their faith in, and their admiration of, the veteran's pertinacity wherewith he follows up the accomplishment of his aim. A man engaged as he is requires rest and quiet, and we would not be surprised if he wished the Press and its reporters—elsewhere, rather than in his immediate neighbourhood.

Dr. Maarten Maartens, in one of his illuminating works, recites the fable of a reformer who lived in prehistoric times. So severe was he upon his contemporaries, so acrid were his criticisms of men and manners of his period, that finally, in a fit of exasperation, they fell upon and slew him. A crowd gathered around the body, commenting upon the victim's life and the retribution that had befallen him. "He was impossible," they said; "he used the world as his football; he kicked it!" The dead man opened one eye, and winked. "Exactly," he murmured, "but always towards the goal!" In like manner are we accused of too frequently sounding the phrases of Steinert's Weinstube. "The D.R. is incorrigible," say our readers; "it is incessantly reminding us of this restaurant and urging us on willy nilly." Exactly; but always towards the Kurfürstendamm, which in this case represents the goal of mundane entertainment.

THE QUEBEC CELEBRATIONS.

Quebec, July 17.
The warships of the Atlantic Fleet, which will attend the Tercentenary celebrations, have already arrived here, and the harbour wears a gala appearance. The streets are greatly enlivened by the presence of thousands of bluejackets and marines, who have received shore leave, and mingle with the gaily uniformed men of the various Canadian regiments, and the troops of performers in the pageant passing to and from the rehearsals in their brilliant costumes.
The decorations, which are practically complete, illustrate in brief the leading events of Canadian history, from the days of Jacques Cartier to Confederation. Vice-Admiral Sir Assheton Curzon-Howe, Commander-in-Chief of the Atlantic Fleet, Rear-Admiral Sir John Jellicoe, and a brilliant staff, including most of the captains of the Fleet, made a number of official calls yesterday upon Earl Grey, the Governor-General, the Lieutenant-Governor, the Mayor of Quebec, and other dignitaries.
The fac-simile of Champlain's ship "Le Don de Dieu" made a trial trip under sail, and behaved admirably. Visitors are already pouring in, including many press representatives from Great Britain and the United States, besides the representatives of the Canadian newspapers.

The Prince of Wales has accepted an invitation to a luncheon, to be given by M. Garneau, Mayor of Quebec, at which 250 other guests will be present. His Royal Highness has also caused gratification in French-Canadian circles by accepting an invitation to lunch with the members of the Quebec Seminary and Laval University at their country holiday retreat in the little French village of St. Joachim.

The s.s. "Empress of Ireland" is expected to arrive here today (Friday), bringing the Duke of Norfolk and Lord Roberts to attend the celebrations.

THE MURDERED DENVER PRIEST.

Canon City, Colorado, July 17.
The murderer Alia was hanged on Wednesday evening. Giuseppe Alia's crime, the murder of Father Leo Heinrichs, of the Order of Franciscan Monks, at the altar rail in St. Elizabeth's Church, in Denver, while the priest was administering the Sacrament, struck horror to the heart of every person in Denver and awakened anxiety throughout the Catholic world in America lest it should prove the beginning of a general plan of priest murder.
Alia had been in Denver several weeks unemployed and apparently penniless. Early on the morning of Sunday, February 23, according to his story, he was aroused from sleep by the ringing of the chimes in St. Elizabeth's Church. He arose, dressed himself hurriedly, and walked out to the church, led by the tones of the bells, which recalled alleged wrongs experienced in his native Italy, and attributed by him to the church. Entering the church, Alia went through the usual ceremony of blessing himself with holy water and then seated himself where his view of the altar would be unobstructed. There he followed the ritual up to the point where Communion is given to all who are prepared. Alia approached the altar, and kneeling, awaited the arrival of the priest officiating at the Communion, not knowing, Alia has said, or caring who it should be.

When Father Leo—beloved by all who knew him both in and outside the church—appeared with the consecrated wafers, Alia, according to his own statement, could barely restrain a desire to spring at the throat of the priest, despite the place, the scene, and the peculiarly sacred character of the action in progress. On the wafer being presented, Alia spat it from his mouth, and almost simultaneously with this desecration a shot rang out, and Father Leo sank to the floor mortally wounded. A bullet from a revolver fired by Alia had penetrated the priest's body near the heart.

Father Wulstan Workman, hearing the shot, rushed from the adjoining sacristy just in time to administer to Father Leo the last sacrament. Immediately after firing the shot Alia, with a curse, darted towards the main aisle of the church, and rushed for the door. With hair dishevelled and

H. M. King Friedrich August, accompanied by the Crown Prince and Prince Friedrich Christian, left Dresden on Friday morning at 10 o'clock, at the commencement of their tour to Scandinavia, details of which have already been reported in these columns. General Count Vitzthum and Major von Arnim were also members of the party.

His Majesty will, it is announced, return to Dresden on August 6th.

His Majesty the King of Saxony with his two eldest sons visited Hagenbeck's Tiergarten on Friday and then dined with the Burgomaster of Hamburg at the latter's summer residence. The Royal Party slept on board the "Kronprinzessin Cecilie" and started for the North yesterday at 10 a.m.

The Arion Singing Society, of Brooklyn, N.Y., left Chemnitz yesterday morning by the eight o'clock train for Nuremberg, after having been magnificently entertained by the grateful inhabitants of the "Manchester of Saxony."

The programme of the orchestral concert at the Royal Belvedere today and tomorrow will be as follows:—Today (Sunday).

- (1) Malorti-Marsch, Trenkler. (2) Overture "Giraldia," Adam. (3) Virgo Maria, Oberthür. (4) Veilchen am Wege, Walzer, Fétras. (5) Overture "Zar und Zimmermann," Lortzing. (6) Quintett, "Die Meistersinger," Wagner. (7) Liebesständchen, Müller. (8) Melodienkongress, Conradi. (9) Soldatenblut, Marsch, Blon. (10) Fest-Overture, Lassen. (11) Die Nebensonnen, Lied, Schubert. (12) La Gioconda, Balletm., Ponchielli. (13) Ein Abend auf dem Königlichen Belvedere, Suite, Schiller. (14) Schwedisches Volkslied für Posaune und Horn-Quartett, Diewitz. (15) Czardas, Peti. (16) Overture "Prinz Methusalem." (17) Ballnachtszauber, Vollstedt. (18) Anona, Grey. (19) Galopp, Holländer.

- Tomorrow (Monday).
- (1) Jubelfestmarsch, Fétras. (2) Overture: "Comique," Kéler-Béla. (3) Einl. z. III. Akt a. "Lohengrin," Wagner. (4) Estudiantina-Walzer, Waldteufel. (5) Overture: "Traviata," Verdi. (6) Trost im Leid f. Viol. m. Orch., Kempter. (7) Tonbilder a. "Die weisse Dame," Boildieu. (8) Overture: "Frau Meisterin," Suppé. (9) a. Vorsatz; b. Aller Seelen, Lieder, Lassen. (10) Selma-Mazurka, Richter. (11) Quadrille, Sousa.

Besides the regular daily concerts two double concerts will take place this week in the "Grosse Wirtschaft," Kgl. Grosser Garten. On Wednesday the trumpeter corps of the Royal Saxon Guards (conducted by Herr Kgl. Stabstrompeter H. Stock), and the band of the establishment (conducted by Herr Musikdirektor A. Wentscher) will perform.

The Max Schumann Circus has justly earned a widespread reputation by the excellence of its performances, a reputation which will not suffer from its present welcome visit to Dresden. In contrast to so many similar entertainments, the visitor to the spacious canvas marquees erected near the König Albert Strasse is sure of finding a comfortable seat, and his pleasure is not spoiled by the display of those vulgar advertisements which are, unfortunately, a striking feature of many travelling circuses. The lengthy programme comprising twenty numbers was successfully opened by a graceful equestrienne, Miss Margit, whose wonderful feats called forth the warmest admiration. An element of intense humour was introduced by the two miniature clowns, their antics being especially appreciated by the juveniles present. Fräulein Gontard exhibited her prowess on the tight-rope to the great satisfaction of the audience, this turn being far and away above the ordinary level—in more ways than one! A marvellously trained horse, personally presented by Herr Schumann, created a sensation by its unflinching accuracy in discriminating between the flags of different countries; while the representation of a hunt—the huntsmen being dolls mounted upon Scotch ponies—caused much pleasurable excitement. Herr Curtault gave a very difficult and risky sporting turn, manipulating two spirited horses harnessed to a gig with remarkable dexterity. The "horsey" turns were, in fact, a real treat to every lover of animals. Rarely has a Dresden audience witnessed such a splendid exhibition of horsemanship as that given by Herr Ernst Schumann on the English thoroughbred "Adrea." The animal was ridden magnificently, its rider putting it through all the paces, including dancing steps, in a manner that demonstrated the most careful training and control. People who take a delight in looking upon the gloomy side of things must find themselves in a most awkward position during the performance by Clown Rappo. The audience roared with laughter even at the sight of his grotesque figure, and the comicalities he displayed beggar description.

In the space at our command it is impossible to further enumerate the details of the programme, but we advise our readers to pay a visit to this unique entertainment without delay. It is a certain cure for all and every species of "the blues."

Considerable amusement was caused among those who had gathered on the Terrace of the Houses of Parliament one day last week. An Irish M. P. entertained to tea a friend who was dressed in the most extraordinary manner. The gentleman who was the immediate object of the merriment was attired in a very short kilt, coat, and brown stockings. On his head he wore a cap, beneath which projected a bunch of brown curls. Nothing more interesting had been seen on the Terrace for years, and we do not doubt that the parliamentarians considered the sight a unique one. In the Stadt Gotha, however, one is accustomed to see all sorts and conditions of men, for the fame of the Schloss Strasse hostelry has spread far and wide, and consequently the crowd there represents every phase of cosmopolitan life.

Two performances will be given at the Central Theatre today: in the afternoon at 3.30, Der Teufel, a three-act play by Franz Molnar (at half prices); in the evening at 8 o'clock, Ganz der Papa, with Albert Bozenhard in the rôle of the Baron des Aubrais (ordinary prices). This is the last Sunday performance of Ganz der Papa, as Herr Bozenhard's visit comes to an end on Wednesday.

We are assured from an authoritative source that the report published by the Chemnitz Tageblatt to the effect that Grete Beier, now lying at Chemnitz under sentence of death, had been reprieved, is incorrect.

The guards in the city today will be furnished by the 2nd Jäger Battalion No. 13, whose band will play in the Neustadt about 12.30 p.m.

the smoking weapon flourished over his head, he made his way to within ten feet of the portal, where he tripped and fell. A policeman, Daniel Cronin, who was among the worshippers, wrenched the revolver from Alia's hand, and dragged him to the street in an effort to protect him from the maddened worshippers. Outside the policeman and his charge were surrounded by several hundred persons, who were about to tear Alia from the officer's hands, when several priests and Franciscan brothers appeared on the steps and interceded to avert mob violence. Several hours later Alia was spirited out of the town in an automobile, and taken to Colorado Springs.

The trial was comparatively brief, but every opportunity of defence was given. Insanity was pleaded, but the best alienists in Denver testified that Alia was sane, and he was sentenced to be hanged. A petition from citizens in Alia's native town in Italy pleading for his life, and declaring that he was undoubtedly insane, was forwarded to the Italian Consul here, but it was without effect.

SERIOUS STRIKE TROUBLES IN ALABAMA.

Birmingham (Ala.), July 18.

A train conveying strike breakers was attacked at Adanville by a band of locked-out coal miners today. The Deputy Sheriff, who was on the train, was killed, and fifteen strike breakers wounded. A second train conveying more labourers has left here for the scene, and the Governor is holding the State militia in readiness to despatch to Adanville should events warrant such a step.

TURBINES ON NORTH ATLANTIC ROUTES.

It is a notable feature in turbine propulsion that the speeds of the great turbine steamers on the Atlantic are steadily increasing, instead of remaining stationary for a time and gradually diminishing with the use of the engines, as has been the general experience with high-powered ships of the reciprocating type. The last voyage of the "Lusitania," on which all previous Atlantic records were broken, is an illustration of this point, but the Cunarders are not alone in this respect. The turbines of the Allan Line on the Canadian route are also steadily increasing their speed records, and this increase, taken in conjunction with the time saved in their short land-to-land route, is bringing the Canadian port-to-port service into prominence. The "Victorian," the speed of which formerly did not greatly exceed 17 knots, attained on her last voyage a speed of nearly 19 knots, and made an average for the whole voyage of 18.27, or a little over 5½ days from port to port.

All Atlantic records from Glasgow to Canada have been broken by the Allan Line steamer "Grampian," which left Glasgow on Saturday, July 4th, and arrived at Quebec on Saturday, July 11, after an unprecedented run of seven days.

JAPAN'S FUTURE POLICY.

Tokio, July 18.

In an interview accorded to a Press representative, Marquis Katsura, the new Premier of Japan, declared that his noblest task would be the maintenance of peace. Speaking of financial matters, he said that the national finances called for prompt improvement. The regulation of present sources of revenue and the development of new channels were matters of vital importance to the Government.

Marquis Katsura is currently reported to have endorsed the proposal to limit expenditure on armaments, without, however, interfering with the present naval and military establishment.
