THE UNEMPLOYED IN ENGLAND.

The highly significant figures furnished by our London correspondent and published in another column indicate the truly alarming proportions which the unemployed question has assumed in Great Britain in the present year of grace. With every prospect of an exceptionally severe winter, according to the meteorological experts, the outlook is grave indeed. So far no practical solution of the unemployed problem has been put forward, though Tariff Reformers continue to assert that the principle they advocate would prove an infallible panacea for this economic sore. The Socialists also claim a hearing, but their remedy, while engagingly simple, is not calculated to meet with general approval. Briefly, they would take from those that have and give to those that have not, a proposal which at least may claim Biblical justification. Meanwhile the acute and ever increasing distress among the poorer classes in the metropolis and the provinces is being temporarily allayed by a system of district council doles, and in most cases the charity stigma is avoided by providing work for applicants in the shape of wood-chopping and stone-breaking. This constant drain on municipal resources cannot be sustained indefinitely, however, and the evil day is therefore only postponed. There is much to be said for the suggestion tentatively put forward by the Minister of War, Mr. Haldane, last week, that able-bodied men unable to find work should join the Army. This was immediately seized upon by that particular class of agitator who subsists by exploiting the miseries of the poor, and stigmatised as an insult to the British working man. In our opinion, if there is any suggestion of an insult, it applies rather to the Army than the unemployed; but it is a characteristic of the professional agitator that he is very touchy about what he calls his "honour" and that of the unfortunate class whom he so ably misrepresents. The unemployed would inflict no injury on their cause if they repudiated these professional mischief-makers, whose only claim to notoriety is their amazing illiteracy and unbounded impudence, two attributes hardly likely to secure them a hearing from those who have most power to mitigate suffering among the poor. It may be argued that without resorting to agitation the unemployed are unable to bring their sad plight before the notice of the public. We believe this argument is also used by the "suffragettes," but it all depends on how the word "agitation" is construed.

In Parliament the self-appointed champion of the unemployed, Mr. Victor Grayson, has been doing his utmost to discredit his constituents in the public eye. Much may be forgiven Mr. Grayson on account of his verdant youth; and indeed the youthful nature of his offence merits the form of chastisement usually meted out to erring juveniles. Last Friday and Saturday he was obviously doing his best to be restrained from taking part in any further legislation, and his tactics met with brilliant success on Saturday afternoon,—when, after an exhibition of childish impertinence more suited to the school-room than the dignified assembly before which it occurred, he was suspended for the remainder of the present Session. Mr. Grayson will always be remembered as the member of parliament who, on the occasion of the rioting in Belfast, exhorted the unruly element to meet the batons of the constables with broken bottles, advice which, luckily for all concerned, was disregarded. We sincerely trust that his misguided constituents will at the next general election—or before if possible—express in unmistakable terms their disapproval of his reprehensible conduct.

Mr. HAPPOLD, English Solicitor, has offices at Französische Strasse 43, Berlin. International, Private, and Commercial matters.

It also appears that Mr. Will Thorne, who up to the present has commanded general respect by his straightforward and manly policy in and out of Parliament, forgot himself while addressing a body of the unemployed last week. He is reported to have advised the men to "rush" bakers' shops if they were unable to obtain bread for their starving children otherwise, and for proffering this advice he was summoned on Saturday and compelled to give sureties for his future good behaviour. It is not difficult to understand how a man may be swayed by his sympathy at the sight of such widespread misery and give utterance on the impulse of the moment to sentiments which he may heartily regret afterwards. But the fact remains that for a responsible party, particularly a member of Parliament, to preach the gospel of anarchy is as injudicious as it is dangerous. The unemployed question demands prompt solution, but such a solution can best be reached by a calm survey of the situation and of the most practical remedies. Wild words and disorderly conduct are powerless, and can but harm the cause they are intended to promote.

GENERAL NEWS.

NEWS FROM ENGLAND.

THE UNEMPLOYED: ALARMING FIGURES.

(From our own correspondent.)
 London, October 18.
 The figures issued last night showing the number of unemployed in London are of an alarming character. The following are the chief comparisons with last year:—

	Workhouse.	Outdoor.	Inc. over 1907.
London	78,114	45,890	5,747
East District	16,221	9,532	3,161
South District	26,711	19,424	1,480
North District	16,550	11,125	1,496
Islington	4,596	6,459	1,370
Poplar	4,181	6,615	2,723
Southwark	4,592	2,266	768

"It is impossible," said Commissioner Nicol, of the Salvation Army, after he had presided at a distribution of food yesterday to 200 unemployed at the dépôt in Whitechapel-road, "to calculate the number of unemployed, but the symptoms are very grave. Our shelters are full to overflowing, and we are tempted to defy the regulations of the County Council and take in more destitute than our premises will hold. A larger proportion than usual of married men are applying to us, both skilled and unskilled. I know a street where twenty-two householders have had notice to quit this week. This time last year there was not a single case in that street. Many small shopkeepers are verging towards bankruptcy. Among our own people, who are for the most part made up of decent working people, poor to very poor, a larger proportion than ever are out of work. A sergeant-major came to me who had been out of work for many months. 'I have been married twenty-five years,' he said, 'and have paid my rent every week. I can pay it no longer.' It is impossible to deal adequately with the terrible state of things until the extent of the distress is known. The German system of complete registration and drafting men where work is to be found will go a long way towards providing a remedy."

In Leeds there are 2,436 unemployed on the register and sixty were added yesterday; in Nottingham, 4,000; in Newcastle, 873 on the register against 392 last year; in Middlesbrough, 2,500 in excess of the normal number; and in Dublin the workless are given at 15,000. In Peterborough yesterday a deputation asked the council for work for 114 men with 195 dependents; 150 railwaymen were said to have been discharged during the last few months.

MR. ROOSEVELT.

VISIT TO ENGLAND ANNOUNCED.
 We understand (says the Times) that, after the conclusion of his hunting trip in Africa, early in 1910, Mr. Roosevelt will spend some time in England.

He has promised to deliver the Romanes lecture at Oxford, and it is expected that the University will confer on him at Commemoration the same honorary degree as that held by the German Emperor. The ex-President will also deliver an address at the Paris Sorbonne. Neither the exact dates nor the subjects of these lectures are yet known. Mrs. Roosevelt will probably join her husband at Khartoum on his journey northward.

NEWS FROM AMERICA.

MR. ROOSEVELT AND THE SUFFRAGETTES.

Buffalo, October 17.
 Kate M. Gordan, Secretary to the Woman's Suffrage Organisation, reporting before the Woman's Suffrage Congress, said that President Roosevelt, replying to a communication, informed her that a petition with a million signatures would not move him to recommend woman's suffrage to Congress.

TRUST AND ANTI-TRUST.

New York, October 19.
 Mr. J. O'Keefe, the Sacramento manager of the Western Meat Company, which is alleged to be controlled by the Swift and Morris interests, has been convicted in California of conspiracy in restraint of trade under the Cartwright Anti-Trust Act, and it is stated that an action is pending against the Corporation itself on the same grounds. In view of the possibility of other States starting similar suits, it is rumoured that the Swift, Morris, and Armour interests are about to organise a foreign holding company as a protection against the stringent United States law.

AMERICAN ACTRESS SERIOUSLY ILL.

Boston, October 18.
 Miss Margaret Illington, one of the best known of American actresses, and the wife of Mr. Daniel Frohman, the famous impresario, is lying seriously ill here. It is stated that Miss Illington is suffering from the results of overwork.

MR. BRYCE LECTURES AT YALE.

Newhaven (Conn.), October 17.
 Mr. Bryce, the British Ambassador, yesterday evening delivered the second lecture of the Dodge Foundation series at Yale University. The Ambassador's subject was again the responsibilities of citizenship.

BRITISH COLUMBIA SEALSKIN CATCH.

Victoria (B. C.), October 18.
 Eight Victoria sealing schooners have arrived here with 3,100 skins. The catch of the season is double that of last year.

BERLIN

The Tageblatt draws attention to the fact that during the week the Pintsch Gas-Plant Company will start its works in England, and that in so doing it will be the first foreign works to start manufacturing its goods on English soil as the result of the new English Patent Law.

The American Women's Club continues to record good progress. Some very fine volumes were last week added to the library; the membership list increases daily; and a number of Americans have visited the Club to enjoy the afternoon tea. Mrs. Jessie Gayner, a well-known American composer of songs, and her friend Mrs. Riley, who writes words for Mrs. Gayner's songs, have registered their names as members.

Mr. Robert de Bruce has opened the Club season with his lectures on "The Science and Art of Singing." His subjects are: yesterday (Monday) "Imagination: A means for arriving at and achieving a true singing technic." Friday, Oct. 23, "Rhythm: A hitherto unappreciated aid to this technic." Monday, Oct. 26, "Breathing: From the stand-point of the Spoken Word." Friday, Oct. 30, "The Word: The Be-all and End-all of Song." Tickets will be sold to students for single lectures at $1.50, full course, $4; for non-students single lectures cost $2.50, course $8.—Dr. Neena Hamilton-Pringsheim and other notabilities whose programmes have not yet been published, will deliver their lectures later.

Miss Boowie, an American teacher of singing, who spent three weeks in Berlin, has returned to her home in Paris, 157, rue de la Pompe.

Mrs. Lemmel, of Seattle, Directrix of the American Women's Club, on Wednesday last gave an informal tea to Dr. Luce, of the Willard School, and Mrs. Gladston, prior to the latter's departure for Paris.

Frau v. Borosini, formerly well-known in the American and English colonies of Berlin as Miss Dorr, is paying a visit over here and will shortly leave for America.

Mrs. Cadwalader-Guild, the celebrated American sculptress, who spent the summer months travelling in England, has now returned to Berlin and opened her studio for sculpture and painting at Kurfürstendamm 110, where she is engaged at present on a new work, the portrait bust of a prominent German, which she hopes soon to have ready for exhibition. The studio, which is divided, is very artistically arranged, and is the frequent resort of British and American students and visitors. Mrs. Cadwalader-Guild during the winter season will be at home in her studio every Wednesday at five o'clock.

Mrs. Eddy, we hear, has safely arrived at her home in Saginaw, Mich., after a rather stormy crossing.

Mrs. John D. Stanchfield and Mrs. Stanchfield, of New York and Babylon, Long Island, have announced their intention of arriving in Berlin early in the spring.

His Excellency Phya Visutr Kosa, former Siamese Minister in Berlin, has returned from his leave of absence passed in Bangkok to his post in London, accompanied by his two daughters, who are familiar figures in the local American and English colony. The two young ladies have returned to Cheltenham College.

Mrs. Robert Gülcher, of Schlüter Strasse 26, has gone to London for a three weeks' stay.

THE MICHIGAN FOREST BLAZE.

New York, October 18.
Full particulars of the appalling railroad disaster in Michigan (briefly reported in Sunday's Record), as a result of the forest fires are as follow:

A train sent to rescue the people of the village of Metz, who were in peril, was thrown from the tracks near Pulaski and burned. Dispatches from Alpena say it is definitely known that seventeen people were burned to death on the train. They were principally women and children, and were cooped up in box-cars. A telegram from Millersburg, about twenty miles north of Metz, says seventeen were burned to death, and fifteen skeletons have been found in the wreck of a gondola-car, which made up part of the relief train.

With its load of frightened women and children, the relief train left Metz about midnight and started for the north. Flames ran along the tracks on both sides, and the roar of the burning woods rose above all other sounds. The train proceeded north as far as Hawks Station, about half-way between Metz and Millersburg.

The flames swept across the track with increasing fury, and further progress being impossible, the train was headed back towards Alpena. Rushing through the fire and smoke the train struck a Miss Leila Holterhoff, of Los Angeles, accompanied by Miss Lela Morrison, arrived on the S. S. "America," and will spend the winter with Mr. and Mrs. Bernhard Goldsmith and family, at Regensburger Strasse 28.

Mr. Bernhard Goldsmith, who has been in Paris on a six weeks' business trip, arrived here yesterday for a week's stay, prior to his trip to America.

Mrs. Loftus, mother of the English Secretary at the Siamese Legation, together with her daughter and her ward, Miss A. West, have arrived in Berlin and are staying at the Hotel Königshof.

Mrs. Cleves-Symmes and her son, Dr. Cleves-Symmes, resident American physician of Motz Strasse 29, have returned from their protracted summer trip through Switzerland, France, and Italy, and will generally be at home on Sundays to friends who call. Dr. Cleves-Symmes joined Mr. Partello and his party on their trip to the Lago di Como, besides making some interesting excursions on his motor-cycle.

The American Boys' Club, under the direction of Mr. V. Sterns and Mr. Boys, will give a Hallowe'en party on Saturday, Oct. 31, from 5 to 10 p.m. at Meinicke Strasse 8-9.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellison Van Hoose, of New York, have taken an apartment for the winter at Aschenburg Strasse 23.

Mrs. Arthur Nevin, who spent three days in Dresden, has returned to her home at Aschenburg Strasse 23.

Mathilde Renz, an equestrienne at the Circus Busch, met with an accident during Sunday's performance. Her horse, in taking a hurdle, jumped short and fell, throwing the rider, who broke her ankle.

The German Colonial Office has just taken an important step in the direction of attracting capable youths to enter the Colonial Civil Service. We gather from a contemporary that hitherto all officials on entering the service have been obliged to take up their work in any Colony to which they might be appointed, and they did not possess the privilege of being allowed to ask to be transferred to any other Colony; henceforth, the beginners will be allowed to choose the Colony to which they wish to be sent, and their wishes will be attended to so far as that may be possible.

With the opening of the Colonial Institute at Hamburg new regulations will come into force with regard to the training of officials for the Colonial Civil Service; thus, for the future officials destined to serve in South-West Africa, Togo, and the Kamerun Protectorate, will be trained at Hamburg, while those officials who are to serve in German East Africa and the South Sea Islands will be trained in the Oriental Seminary and in the Commercial High School in Berlin.

culvert, which had been burned through. Scenes of indescribable horror followed. Conductor Kinville and engineer Foster managed to crawl into Posen early on their hands and knees, both badly burned.

The fate of Metz and other places is not definitely known, because communication is cut off. Some reports place the total loss of life from all sources at 200, and 40, according to most of the telegrams, is a moderate estimate.

Detroit, October 19.
The forest fires round Presque Isle extended over 100 square miles, and destroyed five villages. It is feared that upwards of fifty lives have been lost. The worst is now over, but fires are still burning in places and hundreds of fugitives have lost their all and are without the means of livelihood. The Governor of Michigan has asked for contributions.

SUBSTITUTE FOR WOOD PULP.

Washington, October 17.
According to an announcement made yesterday the serious problem of how to meet the ever-increasing demand for a substitute for wood pulp has been solved by American scientists. It is stated that Government chemists have discovered, as the result of exhaustive experiments, that cornstalks can be made into a good substitute for wood pulp, and, therefore, can be manufactured at half the cost.

ELECTION NOTES.

Republican uneasiness, we gather from New York despatches, has not yet spread to Wall-street, but the brokers are closely watching the results of the test ballots taken by several of the newspapers. In the railway world, particularly, there is a confidence in Mr. Taft which seems to belie the reports that the railway men will go over to Democracy, and Mr. Harriman predicts that the Republican candidate's election will bring about an immediate boom. A remarkably large number of orders for equipment will, it is stated, be placed if Mr. Taft is elected. The betting is still three to one in his favour.

THE ABRUZZI-ELKINS AFFAIR.

Rome, October 18.
The Corriere learns that the Queen of Italy has given her sanction to the marriage of the Duke of the Abruzzi with Miss Katherine Elkins.

The conflicting statements attributed to Senator and Mrs. Elkins with regard to the long-talked-of engagement between their daughter and the Duke of the Abruzzi (writes the New York correspondent of the Globe), have once more elevated that romantic affair to a level of public interest barely surpassed by the contest for the Presidency. In the absence of anything more grateful to the curious than denial and counter-denial, the papers have seized upon the

DRESDEN

Herr Franz Steiner, a singer hitherto personally unknown to Dresden audiences, introduced himself at the Palmengarten on Saturday evening. In Vienna, his native city, and in Berlin this young artist has already gained his laurels, and his reputation had preceded him. He possesses a full, rich baritone voice of fine quality, and it has been cultivated in a good school; but he does not as yet possess other qualifications that are essential to his enduring success as an interpreter of songs; he lacks, for the present at least, the faculty of entering into the spirit of his poet and his composer and of carrying his audience with him. Herr Steiner's interpretations of Schubert, Brahms, and Löwe were all alike monotonous, and his tone was often unpleasantly nasal. In songs by R. Strauss, however, he showed considerable power of feeling and expression, although his phrasing wanted clearness and finish.

Herr Willem Andriessen, of Amsterdam, accompanied the songs sympathetically but without much of the fervour of inspiration, or vivid suggestion. In his solo performance of Brahms' "Variations on a Händel theme" he proved himself to be an accomplished pianist, with an unerring musical instinct and a highly cultivated sense of the beauty of tone. All the technical difficulties of the work were overcome with ease. This was a performance of the highest merit, and the modest, previously unnoticed accompanist became all at once the sensation of the evening. It was a pity that this eminent artist was so chary of his solos, and that he gave us no further proofs of his mature art. A rivederci! M. N.

This month (writes a London journal) Miss Kathleen Parlow, the young violinist whose playing has won so much favour, embarks upon a European tour which will extend into the new year. She will play in Leipzig at the Gewandhaus on November 26, and the Dresden Opera House on December 18, while on November 9 she will return to be heard at Queen's Hall with the London Symphony Orchestra, under the conductorship of Dr. Richter. Miss Parlow will fulfil engagements in London during next season, and afterwards undertakes a tour in America. A Canadian by birth, like Mischa Elman and Zimbalist she is a pupil of Professor Auer, with whom she studied in St. Petersburg for eighteen months, subsequent to making her debut in London at the Bechstein Hall in 1905.

The traveller who, leaving Sofia, journeys towards the East, finds before him a country of a totally different aspect from that he has left behind. Towns and villages take on a new form and colour, and even the landscape undergoes a sudden transformation. Nothing strikes him more than the situation of Tirnovo, the ancient capital of Bulgaria. Built in the middle of a natural amphitheatre formed by the Balkan mountains, it rises on a series of rocks to a considerable height. Rocky terraces, steep and separated one from another, precipices, flinty defiles barren of life and vegetation, a river scintillating here and there as it winds around the natural Acropolis—such are the natural characteristics of Tirnovo.

The town, by reason of its situation, is extremely narrow and confined. The principal street which runs along the top of rocky plateaus, connected by bridges, is the only one accessible to vehicles, and even here there is not room for more than two abreast. From this street the town descends rapidly in successive terraces, the garden of one house being on a level with the upper floor of the one below it. So steep are the streets that hand rails are provided. The houses are built in several storeys, which is unusual in the East. Most of them are of wood and painted white or in brilliant hues of pink, blue, and yellow. Tirnovo was a flourishing town between 1186 and 1393, but declined rapidly under the Ottoman domination, and the Turkish colony, formerly numerous, is now greatly reduced.

From Vienna comes the most glowing account of the debut of a new tenor, Signor Tamini, who has just appeared in "Carmen." But the critics cannot have it both ways, and to describe him as "another Caruso and a second Tamagno" is rather a confusing as well as a tall order. A few years ago Signor Tamini was a bank clerk in Mannheim. After studying singing he secured a minor part at the Volksoper, but the management at Vienna were so struck with his abilities that he was speedily raised to the MUSIC AND ART NOTICES.

Tomorrow, Wednesday, Miss Watson will give the first lecture in the course on Modern Art, in her rooms at Gutzkow Strasse 33, II. These lectures which will be given every Wednesday at 11.30 are abundantly illustrated by photographs and other reproductions. In this course the great art movements of the nineteenth century in France, Germany, England, Spain, and Italy are treated through the representative masters, the whole forming a complete survey of the field of art in the past century down to the present time. Tickets for the course or for single lectures may had at Gutzkow Strasse 33, II.

The I. Philharmonic Concert will take place this evening at the Gewerbehause, at 7.30. The soloists engaged are Kammer Sängerin Preuse-Matzenauer and Jose Vianna da Motta. The programme will be as follows: Overture: Mozart: Sextus-Arie aus Titus.—Saint-Saëns: C-minor (IV.) Konzert für Klavier und Orchester.—Lieder von Schumann, Schubert.—Liszt: Ungarische Fantasie mit Orchester.—Lieder von R. Strauss.

The III. Max Reger Concert will take place tomorrow at the Palmengarten. Professor Dr. Max Reger (pianoforte) will be assisted by Sanna van Rhyn (soprano), Martha Ruben (alto), Edith Albrecht (pianoforte), Professor Henri Petri (violin), and Professor Georg Wille (violoncello). The programme will be as follows: Reger's Trio C-minor for Violin, Violoncello and Pianoforte op. 102.—Lieder: Auf mondbeschiedenen Wegen, Flötenspielerin, Du bist mir gut, Kindergeschichte, Schelmenliedchen, Mein Schätzlein, for soprano.—Lieder for soprano and alto: Abendlied, Abendgang, Nachts.—Introduction, Passacaglia and Fuge op. 96 for two pianos.

Professor Forel's lecture on "Prejudices and progress in marriage and sexual life" will take place tomorrow, the 21st inst., at the Vereinshaus.

Fri. Helene Staegemann's programme at her Mendelssohn-Song-Recital on the 22nd inst. at the Palmengarten will be as follows: Frühlingslied; Suleika; Das Schiffelein; Hexenlied; Das erste Veilchen; Neue Liebe; Bei der Wiege; Rheinisches Volkslied; Die Liebende schreibt; Minnelied; Lieblingsplätzchen; Schwäbisches Frühlingslied; Der Blumenstrauß; An die Entfernte; Gruss; Volkslied.—Coenrad V. Bos will be the accompanist.

The following works by Mozart will be performed by the Leipzig Gewandhaus (Julius Klengel) Quartett and Herr Emil Kronke (pianoforte) at the I. Chamber music concert in the hall of the Künstler Haus on the 27th inst., at 7.30 p. m.: (1) Trio G. (2) Streichquartett B. (3) Klavierquartett E.

Triket, a Frenchman Herr Rüdiger.
Guillot, valet Herr Büssel.

PLOT. In the opening scene the mother of two young girls, Tatjana and Olga, recalls in conversation with her nurse the days of her youthful love, and concludes that although she married a man other than her choice, she had nevertheless had a happy life. From the progress of the opera it would appear that her history is to be repeated in the case of her daughters. Olga is in love with Lenski, who introduces his friend Eugen Onegin, to whom Tatjana immediately becomes passionately attached. After a struggle with her pride, Tatjana writes a letter to Onegin declaring her passion, in reply to which he offers her a brother's love. His attitude towards Olga, however, excites the jealousy of Lenski. A duel is arranged between them, in which Onegin shoots Lenski dead. Remorse at having killed his best friend drives him forth into the world to wander for twenty-six years. His final return to St. Petersburg, where a grand Court function he meets the Princess Gremin, in whom he recognises Tatjana. Her love for him revives, but she resists his overtures and remains true to her marriage vow.

message published in a London journal from its Rome correspondent, and promptly cabled out to New York, to the effect that the Albanians desire the Duke as their Sovereign ruler; and Mrs. Oliphant, who is Miss Elkins' half-sister, questioned with regard thereto, is alleged to have made the significant remark that "Katherine is well fitted to grace any throne."

DISTURBANCES AT PRAGUE.

Prague, October 18.
Disturbances of a noisy and not altogether harmless character took place today between the Socialists and the German students. Some of the latter were jeered at by Socialists while they were amusing themselves during the forenoon in the "Graben," one of the main streets of the town. Hand to hand encounters took place, but the police interfered and made a few arrests. Order was for a time restored; but not long after, a crowd again assembled and pressed the students, who then numbered about 300, so hard that they were urged to take refuge in the German casino. Some of the students did so, but the German nationalist students remained outside and sang "Die Wacht am Rhein." The police again thereupon took action, forced the students into the casino, and drove back the crowd towards the Wenzel Platz. This was not done without many arrests being made. The crowd in retiring and dispersing broke the windows of several German houses. In the afternoon the demonstrations were repeated, and on so much larger a scale that the police drew their swords and the military were called out. Several streets were occupied by the troops, and all was quiet again at 10 o'clock at night. Seventy-five arrests were made in all.

ASTOUNDING SCENE IN A CONSULATE.

Agram, October 17.
A murderous attack was made today by a workman on the acting Italian Consul, a contractor named Carnelutti. While the latter was examining the passport of a foreign workman, one of his men forced his way into the office and made a claim for wages. As his claim was not allowed, the man drew a revolver and fired, wounding M. Carnelutti and his mother, dangerously, and the foreign workman fatally; he then gave himself up to the police.

NEWS FROM RUSSIA.

MISHAP TO A MILITARY BALLOON.

St. Petersburg, October 17.
The Russian military dirigible balloon made a successful trial today in the experimental park. A second ascent was then made, but not without a mishap. The tow rope became entangled in the screw, and the balloon was driven by the wind against the telegraph poles of the Baltic Railway, where it was held.

THE CHOLERA IN ST. PETERSBURG.

St. Petersburg, October 17.
The number of new cholera cases reported in the last 24 hours was 52, and the number of deaths 21. The number of cholera patients is reduced to 852. The total number of cases that have been treated in St. Petersburg since the outbreak is 7,426, of which 3,565 proved fatal. In consequence of frost and snow having set in the disease has now lost its epidemic character.

HONOUR FOR DR. SVEN HEDIN.

Stockholm, October 17.
The Anthropological Society yesterday unanimously appointed Dr. Sven Hedin, the famous explorer, an honorary member of the society, and conferred upon him M. Wahlberg's medal in gold. The society proposes to give a banquet in honour of Dr. Sven Hedin when he returns to Stockholm.

SCRIMMAGE AT CASABLANCA.

Paris, October 18.
An Agence Havas telegram from Casablanca, of the 16th instant, gives particulars of a fracas between an Italian and some French officers. The Italian, who was in the employ of a French firm, accused six officers on the Mole of delaying the discharge of cargo from the ships in port, and was so insulting that blows were exchanged, particularly with one lieutenant. The Italian lodged a complaint at the Consulate.

ITALIAN SYMPATHY FOR SERBIA.

Belgrade, October 18.

Servian people in opposing such annexation. After the meeting the Italians went in procession with their flag to the Konak, and cheered the King loudly. The King appeared on the balcony and thanked the Italians for their sympathy, closing his speech with the words, "Long live the Servian and the Italian nations!"

WHAT BECAME OF THE CAMELS?

Colomb Bechar, October 17.
The French troops ordered to pursue a band of Moroccans who had stolen 500 camels from the neighbourhood of Ain Safra, came up with the fugitive marauders near Oglia Benida, and dispersed them. The band left 25 of their number dead on the field. On the French side one officer and five native soldiers were wounded, two of the latter severely.

THREE THOUSAND DEATHS FROM CHOLERA.

Hong Kong, October 19.
It is officially stated that at Wuchang, during the first fortnight of last month, upwards of three thousand deaths from cholera occurred. The scourge is prevalent to an unprecedented extent in the Southern provinces, and the Nippon Yusen Kaisha steamers have taken the precaution of carrying a specialist in addition to the regular ship's surgeon on all their steamers calling at the affected ports.

EXTRACTS FROM THE LONDON REVIEWS.

BALKAN CONFERENCE.

We most heartily welcome the announcement that it is not the intention of the Russian Government to raise the question of the Dardanelles at the coming Conference, or indeed to raise it at all except by way of amicable negotiation. But it is hardly possible that the Near Eastern question can be reopened, as it has been reopened, without bringing this and other intricate and contentious problems on to the carpet. The horizon, in a word, is not yet clear, and it would be folly not to prepare ourselves for grave developments. Our immediate interest and duty meanwhile are to support Turkey before and at the approaching Conference, as we supported France before and at Algéciras.—Outlook.

"SILLY WOMEN."

We will make one suggestion to the serious and reasonable supporters of women's suffrage, for there are such. Their movement will have no chance until it is purged of this suffragette foolery. Before they ask for votes they must cleanse their house and convince the world that they can be trusted to behave decently. For these outbreaks there will have to be some expiation. A striking and picturesque demonstration is ready to their hand. Let them go in solemn procession—barefoot in white sheet and candle—through Whitehall to the Parliament House, and there in the "outer" Lobby humbly pray of the Speaker forgiveness of their silly sisters' offences.—Saturday Review.

THE UNEMPLOYED PROBLEM.

There are many possible means of helping towards a solution of this problem, but they will all be blocked unless the Socialist party can either be converted or defied. The motive which seems to actuate that party and its Radical supporters in the Cabinet is to confine the power of the State to the distribution of doles to the poor, or professed poor, at the expense of persons who may or may not be rich. On no account is the power of the State to be employed to enforce upon all classes responsibility for their own maintenance and for the maintenance of their families, and for the discharge of their duties as citizens. The "Have-nots" are to be subsidised at the expense of the "Haves." To plunder the "Haves" for the benefit of the "Have-nots" is justice; to put pressure upon the "Have-nots" so that they may themselves become "Haves" is tyranny.—Spectator.

THE GOVERNMENT MUDDLE.

It will require all the resolution and all the tactical skill of the leaders to avert a legislative block at the very close of the autumn, of which the House of Lords will take full advantage. Nor has the Government the same freshness of youthful vigour, nor the same unimpaired confidence in public support, which with a little timely resolution would have surmounted the crisis two years ago. We do not, indeed, lay too much stress on such losses as have been experienced at the by-elections. The danger to the Liberal party is rather that these controversies may be allowed to drag on, that the sore may be kept open, and that the Government may, as it were, waste at both ends, losing credit with its friends for failure to give effect to their desires, while at the same time incurring the desperate hostility of all the interests that they have threatened. If the Government is to maintain itself with the country, the licensing and the education controversies have to be brought to a close.—Nation.
