CONSTANTINOPLE ABLAZE.

TERRIBLE BATTLE IN THE STREETS.

The following telegrams indicate that Sultan Abdul Hamit is still in imminent peril, and any hour may see him deprived of his throne, if not of his life. The calm of the past week now proves to have been a portent of the coming storm. The Young Turk Committee are complete masters of the situation, and upon them depends the decision as to whether the Sultan shall be dethroned or not.

Constantinople, Saturday morning.

The troops forming the Sultan's bodyguard at the Yildiz Kiosk have surrendered to the besieging army, and the Sultan is thus left without any armed defenders. The Macedonian army is marching into the capital. Although gun and rifle fire has been heard since early this morning, it is not believed that the Constantinople garrison is offering serious resistance, as they know that drastic punishment will follow if many of the Committee's men are killed. Major Enver Bey, former Military Attaché in Berlin, has detailed a company of infantry to guard each Embassy and Ministry. Panic prevails in Constantinople.

Salonika, April 24.

Mahmud Shewket Pasha and the members of Parliament, after a conference with Prince Reschad Effendi and the Ulemas, have decided to forward a demand to Sheik ul Islam that Prince Reschad be proclaimed Sultan. The crisis is expected to reach a head at midnight in the Yildiz. The secret session at San Stefano yesterday resulted in a unanimous decision to forcibly occupy the Imperial palace and dethrone Abdul Hamid. Since daybreak there has been an incessant fusillade of big guns and rifles from the direction of the Yildiz Kiosk, where it is possible that the Palace guard is making a stand against the Committee's troops.

Constantinople, Saturday afternoon.

The Young Turk army entered the city this morning, and since then fierce fighting has been going on near the German Embassy. Major Enver Bey is leading the attackers. The roar of big guns and heavy rifle fire is incessant, and the Macedonian troops are appearing to encounter stubborn resistance. The large artillery barracks at Pera have surrendered. Absolute panic reigns among the people. Some soldiers who attempted to escape into the French hospital were shot down in dozens at the door by the Macedonians. Every shop is closed and traffic is at a standstill. Many non-combatants have been wounded, including the correspondent of the New York Sun, who was struck by a bullet while in the act of taking a photograph.—(Later.) The battle is still raging, but one section of the besieging army has reached the Yildiz, and the commander has entered the palace. The Taxim barracks are the scene of the hottest fighting, as the occupants refuse to submit. The great Pera road is crowded with troops, and the fighting is of the most sanguinary description. Many civilians have been killed and wounded. Both sides are freely using machine guns. The ironclads of the fleet are lying with their big guns trained on the Sultan's palace. At the present stage it is impossible to know what is taking place in the Yildiz, and whether the Sultan is in danger.

DIPLOMACY AND THE NEWSPAPERS.

New York, April 23.

The German Ambassador, Count Bernstorff, was among the distinguished guests and speakers at the annual dinner of the Associated Press and the American Newspaper Publishers Association which took place yesterday evening at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. In the course of his speech, Count Bernstorff dwelt on the relations of the Press to diplomacy. The Press, he remarked, had generally freed diplomacy from the duty of reporting facts, so that diplomatists could confine themselves to expressing opinions on events that had occurred. In publishing their views on matters of international interest, diplomatists, like the Press, assumed a heavy responsibility, as the nations had very little exact knowledge of each other in spite of modern facilities of communication. Most people were accustomed to form their opinions on international questions from the telegrams of the foreign correspondents of their newspapers; for that reason he held the reporting of the representatives of the Associated Press abroad in high esteem, inasmuch as those gentlemen showed themselves to be impartial and well-informed.

Going on to speak of German-American relations, His Excellency said he had no occasion to be anxious about the foreign correspondents' reports, since the President of the United States had only a few weeks ago declared, in a letter to the editor of a German newspaper in New York, that it was a gratifying fact that the relations between Germany and America had never been more cordial than they are now. Referring in some detail to the history of those relations, and in particular to the highly beneficial efforts of Mr. Bancroft, the famous American historian and former Ambassador in Berlin, who was a friend of Prince Bismarck, Count Bernstorff quoted a letter written by that American statesman reporting a passage in a speech made by the Prince at a banquet held in Mr. Bancroft's house, in which the great Chancellor pointed out that the cordial agreement between the two countries so happily inaugurated by George Washington and Frederick the Great had never been marred by the slightest discord. Mr. Bancroft's example, said the Ambassador in conclusion, was one which the statesmen charged with the conduct of the relations between Germany and the United States would do well to follow.

THE KING OF ENGLAND.

Malta, April 24.

King Edward, Queen Alexandra, and the Dowager Empress of Russia, who have been staying at Malta for the last few days, will leave tomorrow (Sunday) on board the Royal yacht for an Italian harbour, which has not yet been definitely named pending notification from the King of Italy. The exact date and place of the meeting between King Edward and King Victor Emanuel will probably be announced today.

At the Chapel Royal, St. James's Palace, London, on Thursday afternoon, a service was held for the baptism of the infant son of the Hon. John Ward (Equerry to the King) and Mrs. Ward, the daughter of the American Ambassador in London. The sponsors were the King, who was represented by Lieut.-Colonel G. Holford, Sir Edward Grey, and Miss Kate Bryce, who was represented by Lady Mary Ward. The service was conducted by Canon Edgar Sheppard, Sub-Dean of the Chapel Royal, and the names given to the infant were Edward John Sutton.

Among the congregation were the American Ambassador (Mr. Whitelaw Reid), the Countess of Granard, Lady Wolverton, Lady Herbert, and Georgina Countess of Dudley.

KING EDWARD'S GREETING TO MR. ROOSEVELT.

Mombasa, April 23.

The following message from King Edward was read at a dinner given at the club in honour of ex-President Roosevelt by Mr. F. J. Jackson, Acting Governor of the East Africa Protectorate:—"I bid you a hearty welcome to British East Africa, and trust you will have a pleasant time and meet with every success."

Mr. Jackson said that Mr. Roosevelt had left his big stick at home, and had come to use the rifle after seven strenuous years. He promised him an immense variety of game and good sport.

Mr. Roosevelt, on rising to reply, was enthusiastically received. He paid a high tribute to the British people for their energy and genius in civilising the uncivilised places of the earth. He was surprised at what he had heard of the progress of East Africa, but he warned the British that they could not expect to do in a short time what took America twenty generations. He emphasised the necessity of leaving local questions to the powers on the spot. How little the people at home knew of affairs abroad was instanced by the little that the people of the United States knew of the conditions in the Philippines. Mr. Roosevelt expressed great pleasure at being welcomed by a British warship. He believed in peace, but considered strength meant peace, and hoped that all great, straight nations would provide themselves therewith.

Before Mr. Jackson and Mr. Roosevelt and his party left for Kapiti the ex-President sent a telegram of thanks to King Edward for his Majesty's greetings.

Mr. R. S. Hitt, First Secretary of the American Embassy, has been suffering this week with an attack of "grip."

An American student, whose name can be partially given as "Eugen W.," has lost his pocket-book containing 8,000 marks in addition to thirty American Express Checks, all representing considerable sums. "Eugen W." lives in a better-class Pension in the Keith-Strasse, and has been studying languages here for some months. He had spent the night at various cafés in the city and only discovered his loss upon returning home in the early morning.

Dr. Charles E. Selvage, of New York, who after a short stay in Königsberg has been taking medical courses in Berlin since February, is leaving for Italy, Munich, and Vienna, prior to sailing for home on June 1. Dr. Selvage has been staying at Pension Hoelzl-Sheridan, Potsdamer Strasse 28.

Miss Lillie May Welker, of New York City, who is fulfilling a two years' contract as coloratur soprano at the Erfurter Stadttheater with great success, is in Berlin for the holiday season, as the guest of her teacher, Madame Blanche Corelli, Nürnberger Strasse 1.

News has just reached Berlin friends of the death in America of Rev. Dr. van Slyke, formerly a prominent member of the American Colony.

Mrs. Stephen H. McFadden, and her daughter Helen, who are making a holiday tour in Italy, reached Rome on Friday, and intended going thence to Florence. They will be joined in Florence by Mr. McFadden, who left for Italy yesterday (Saturday). Mr. and Mrs. McFadden expect to return to Berlin in three or four weeks' time.

Mr. Carlyle Smythe, a well known literary man of Melbourne, Australia, is expected in Berlin shortly, with Mrs. Smythe. They will be guests of Dr. Johansen, 7 Brandenburg Strasse, Berlin.

Shakespeare's Christmas, by A. T. Quiller-Couch, has been presented to the American Church library by Mrs. Gardner Lamson.

Mrs. G. P. Osborne, of Staten Island, N.Y., has arrived at Pension Belmont, Victoria Louisen Pl. 10. Miss Elizabeth Dunning, of Philadelphia, and Miss Elizabeth Donaldson, of Baltimore, Md., have also arrived at Pension Belmont, having come up to Berlin from Dresden.

Latest American arrivals at the Hotel Bristol include:—

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson J. Riley, of Indiana; Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Carver, of Sharon, Pa., Mr. D. Frank, and family, of Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Reuss, of Cincinnati.

The successful career of "Miss" Malvina Lampadius, a German woman eleven years resident in Los Angeles, furnishes a striking example of Germany's inexhaustible interest in California. Miss Lampadius has built up a small fortune in America, to say nothing of a villa in Los Angeles, simply by catering to the insatiable German thirst for details about California and the Californians, through the columns of the German newspapers and magazines—which do not proverbially lead to fortunes.

While in Berlin Miss Lampadius achieved distinction as the first woman to deliver an address in the Treptow Observatory. Largely on account of the popularity of her subject (Indian Star-Myths and California's Natural Phenomena), the proceeds of the address have helped materially to work off the 28,000 mark debt on the Treptow Observatory's new building. Miss Lampadius' photographs, especially of the Lick Observatory at Palo Alto and of the Los Angeles Observatory, interested Director Archenhold, the head of the Treptow Sternwarte, so greatly that he insisted upon having them converted into lantern-slides to illustrate the lecture. Miss Lampadius left yesterday (Saturday) for

AMERICAN CHURCH AND BRITISH STUDENTS.

To the Editor of The Daily Record.

Sir, Having read an article in a Berlin paper this week with regard to certain young English girls, students, being utterly homesick and lonely in Berlin, I should like to point out that had they known of the efforts of the American Church to meet just such cases, there would have been considerably less need for this condition. The American Church has for the past five years, since its foundation, regularly offered to British students, on Sunday afternoons and evenings, opportunity for making friends with British and American fellow-students in Berlin. Just possibly it may be a little more than "a month" before the English Club is "in full swing." Why not in the meantime direct attention to this remedy, which already exists, for cases of homesickness and loneliness?

Yours, etc.,

A PRACTICAL FRIEND OF STUDENTS.

DRESDEN

In the Scots Church this evening the Rev. T. H. Wright will lecture on: "Thoughts, their influence upon us in body, mind, and spirit." The subject is introductory to lectures to be delivered during May on: "The Healing Works of Jesus," and "The Raising of Lazarus." The service commences at 6 o'clock.

The last of the Symphony Concerts of the Royal orchestra, B series, began with a commemoration of the 100th anniversary of Haydn's death by the performance of the Symphony in G (No. 13 in the Breitkopf and Härtel list), one of the six composed by Haydn for a Paris order. This was a good choice in a double sense. The construction of the beautiful work is so light and graceful, its feeling is so joyously lively and so suggestive of the love of dancing while not wanting in serious moments, that the spirit of the great creator of the modern instrumental form appears to us in a highly characteristic light. Then the first movement—with its blithesome themes that seem to quiz each other, its merry concert of violins and flutes—is quite appropriate to the Spring life with which all Nature is just now animated. Haydn, the child of the rococo period so prolific of masquerades, is nevertheless among the discoverers of a new and lively natural feeling; and, in his love of Nature, he kept the songs of birds in mind, and used them for his themes as Beethoven did for his "Pastoral Symphony." The Largo, with its noble Cantilene breathing a spirit so deeply religious that it is used in English churches as the music of the Doxology "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," is a fine contrast to the first movement. Seven times, with only two modulations, that theme sounds in our ears, wound and woven about with very slight and careful variations in the accompanying parts. This simple Largo-hymn is like a song of praise in a cathedral. But the last two movements return to joy and merriment, and the spring of old Viennese "Tanzzlust" bubbles up inexhaustibly in the themes of the Minuet and the Finale. The Royal orchestra played this beautiful Haydn work with such incomparable grace and lightness and noble flow of sound that it seemed to flood the house with Spring sunshine.—To hear Beethoven's Fourth Symphony which, like the Eighth, is one of the less popular, was an interesting experience. In this, too, all is merriment and joy, love of life and humour; and, in details of the themes and instrumentation, the pupil of Haydn does not altogether disown his teaching. Whether or not Haydn was acquainted with this Beethoven work of 1806 cannot be ascertained; but the old master would not have fully appreciated it, as was the case with other works by Beethoven, since he did not approve of the path struck out by the bold innovator. The young Weber derided this Fourth Symphony as a work in which the composer's object had not been to represent the nature of an instrument or an idea, but only to appear new and original! How instructive it is for us to have known Wagner and Strauss, in whose works the saying of Haydn in 1805, that "what might yet happen in music was far greater than what had happened," has been proved true. Thus nothing in the Fourth Symphony and its finely worked out score surprises us today; neither the boldness of the rhythm nor the connections of remote chords, not even the amazing Scherzo-like Finale. But the clear beauty of the melodic line, the charming clarinet solo in the Adagio, the lively flow of the rushing semiquavers in the Finale, are in the highest degree enjoyable. So the world follows its leaders, if at least a hundred years behind them.—In the Saint Saëns Concerto op. 33, M. Jean Gerardy played the violoncello part beautifully and impressively. If his tone was a little nasal, his interpretation was quite in keeping with the romantic character of the composition, the modest Scherzo movement in which fitted well into the programme without affording the artist any special opportunity for virtuoso display.—So the last Symphony Concert, conducted by Herr von Schuch (Haydn) and Herr Hagen, closed the season with beautifully bright harmony. *F. ### MUSIC AND ART NOTICES.

The Royal Conservatorium may be congratulated on having secured the services of Fräulein Luise Oftermann as one of the teachers of singing. On the stage as well as in the concert hall she has made herself very popular by her sterling merits as a singer and musician.—Herr Werner, of Cologne, a highly gifted pianist, has been engaged as a teacher of his instrument. The Dortmund Tageblatt writes of his playing at the Westphalian Bach Festival: "In the 'Brandenburg' Concerto Herr Werner achieved a triumph by the truly classical performance of the difficult pianoforte part. His finished execution in the intricate figured passages rendered the notes clear and chiselled, and the final solo had a particularly deep effect that will long dwell in the memory of the Bach lovers who heard it."

PLOT. Elsa of Brabant is accused by Count Telramund of having murdered her young brother Godfrey. King Henry decides the matter must be left to the arbitration of a duel. Elsa prays that a knight she has seen in a dream, may come to her help, and Lohengrin appears in a boat drawn by a swan. He offers to be Elsa's champion on condition that she will marry him, but never attempt to find out his name or origin. She accepts and Telramund is defeated. He is sent to Elsa's help by the Holy Grail. He takes leave of Elsa. The swan appears, but in answer to Lohengrin's prayer, dives beneath the water and in its stead rises the lost Godfrey, whom Ortrud had by witchcraft turned into a swan. The boat, now drawn by a white dove, glides away with Lohengrin, and Elsa sinks senseless to the ground.
