THE POLITICAL MURDER IN LONDON.

London, July 3.

Madar Lal, the murderer of Sir William Curzon Wyllie, was brought before a police magistrate yesterday. He is a Hindu aged 22, and comes from Dhinagri. He maintained an indifferent demeanour throughout the proceedings and, when asked whether he wished to say anything in his defence, shook his head, but added after a pause that he had only shot the Parsee doctor because he was about to attack him.

(DAILY RECORD CORRESPONDENT.)

London, July 2.

The foul assassination of Sir William Curzon Wyllie by an Indian student at the Imperial Institute on Thursday evening has created an enormous sensational in all circles. It is stated this morning that the assassin was at one time prominently connected with the notorious "India House" at Highgate, of which I sent you a detailed account some months ago. There is not the least doubt that the miscreant is only the tool of the great and influential organisation composed of malcontents and interested outsiders who have pledged themselves to overthrow the supremacy of the British Raj, and whose machinations have been largely responsible for the ominous unrest visible in India for the past year or so. Such crimes as this can have but one effect on the aspirations of Indian political reformers,—the indefinite postponement of the reforms they are advocating. Once more the urgent need of drastic measures in dealing with political traitors and the initiation of a strong-handed administration over disaffected centres has been demonstrated, this time with shocking emphasis. The assassin and his superiors could hardly have chosen a less culpable victim than Sir William Wyllie, who was known far and wide as probably the most broad-minded and sympathetic friend of India in the present age.
Practically his entire working existence had been spent in the East, and few men had a more comprehensive and practical knowledge of our Indian possessions. He enjoyed the favour and esteem of every ruling prince with whom he had come into contact, and when in India his word carried great weight with the people.

The newspapers raise a unanimous chorus of condemnation in commenting on this atrocious crime, which has horrified the country. Now for the first time the effects of the pernicious doctrine which a select band of anti-British agitators have preached to young Indian students visiting this country have made themselves felt. For years the agents of this organisation have been working their hardest to get hold of dupes and to instil into them the fanaticism necessary for the carrying out of sanguinary deeds. At all the Universities frequented by Indian students branches of the "India House" and allied societies have been founded and flourished, unmolested by the authorities who consistently pool-poohed the notion that grave mischief might eventually result. The police have embarked upon an exhaustive investigation of this murder, and it is confidently expected that appalling revelations of Indian anarchistic activity throughout the British Isles will be made before very long. The brutal butchery of one of our most distinguished Indian administrators will do much to alienate the ignorant sympathy extended at home and abroad to the "patriots" who arranged it, while it may possibly prove more detrimental to the self-government movement in India than a decade of repressive policy on the part of the Indian Government.

MR. ASQUITH ON SEA POWER.

London, July 3.

Speaking at Southport yesterday, the Prime Minister said: "No one in the whole world has more reason to wish for disarmament, for the cessation of the ruinous and galling competition now going on in the so-called civilised world, than those who are responsible for the government of the country. But meanwhile we feel, whether we consider our home position or our Imperial position, that we cannot give up our naval supremacy. Our sea power is of vital importance for insuring the continued existence of our Empire. That insurance is for the time diminished, not because of any intentional hostility, but through the natural development of other nations. In the last few months demonstrations have come to us from our fellow subjects in all parts of the world that they are not only conscious of the necessity of meeting our common requirements, but that they are ready and willing to help in the work. We look forward with confidence to the result of the forthcoming Imperial Defence Conference."

REMARKABLE MISHAP AT DORTMUND.

Dortmund, July 2.

A large gas pipe belonging to the Hörde works, burst today in the town, and from 50 to 60 people were killed or injured by the explosion, the proportion of killed being large. The fire brigade was quickly on the spot with all available men and appliances.

Hörde, July 3.

The first report of the explosion turns out to be much exaggerated. The facts are as follows. A safety valve in the main leaked.
The gas in the main was blast furnace gas, consisting of carbon oxide, carbonic acid, hydrogen, and nitrogen—and almost odorless. The leaking gas did not explode, but penetrated into the houses in the neighbourhood and asphyxiated about 40 persons, who were conveyed to hospital.
As yet not one case has proved fatal, and the doctors hope that all the patients will recover.

MORE SPEECHES AGAINST THE TSAR.

Paris, July 3.

The debate on the general policy of the Government was continued in the Chamber last evening. M. Jaurès described the sufferings of the working classes and said they were gradually losing faith in the Republic. The proletariat must be powerful enough to ensure the maintenance of peace.
Alluding to the forthcoming visit of the Tsar, M. Jaurès said he was glad to declare that meetings of rulers, whoever they were, might contribute to the maintenance of peace. It would be unjust to lay the whole burden of the people's disapproval on one head; but how would Abdul Hamid have been received if he had made a tour through Europe at the time when Armenian blood was flowing? M. Jaurès then mentioned the protest raised in England against the Tsar's visit to that country, and remarked that the ship of murderous Tsardom would have to avoid Cowes.

The President of the Chamber, M. Brisson, called M. Jaurès to order, and the Minister of Foreign Affairs, M. Pichon, promptly rose, amid cheers from all parts of the Chamber except that occupied by the Socialists. The Minister of Foreign Affairs, he said, could not allow such words to pass without the strongest protest, and, as M.
Jaurès had adduced the example of England, he, the Minister, would quote the answer of the British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs to a Socialist member of the House of Commons: "The Emperor of Russia will be received in our country as an ally who, as he is the friend of France, is also a ruler who has effectually contributed to the maintenance of international peace." (Loud cheers from all the benches, excepting those on the extreme Left, whence violent expressions against the Tsar were heard.)

M. Jaurès then said he had only wished that the Russians who had sacrificed themselves for freedom should learn that their heroism was appreciated.

AMERICA AND CHINA.

Washington, July 3.

America's objection to the Chinese-Russian agreement with regard to the administration of places on the East Manchurian railway relates to the annulment of the ex-territorial rights enjoyed by the Powers. America also objects that the agreement gives Russia a predominant position in Manchurian affairs.

BERLIN

The "Glorious Fourth" oration at tomorrow's (Monday's) celebration at Grünau, will be delivered by Professor Marion Dexter Learned, the brilliant and popular professor of Germanics at Pennsylvania University. Professor Learned, who as already stated, has been working in Berlin on behalf of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, has generously postponed his departure from Berlin by three days in order to attend the Grünau patriotic gathering. His address will be delivered during the dinner in the evening under the trees of the Gesellschaftshaus Park.

Attention is particularly called to the fact that the special steamer for Grünau leaves Jannowitz Brücke at 11.15 a.m. It is advisable to be at the landing-place by 11 o'clock. Those deterred from taking the steamer in the morning may come out by any of the hourly steamers later or by one of the many trains on the Stadtbahn during the day or evening.

Trains.

One of the best means of reaching Jannowitz Brücke is by way of the Stadtbahn from Zoologischer Garten. The following street-cars may be taken: from Moabit Nos. 6, 9, 11, 19; from Charlottenburg Nos. 80 and 81; from Berlin N. No. 28; from Gesundbrunnen Nos. 35, 36, 41. The Hochbahn (underground) may be taken to Spittelmarkt from hence it is a walk of 10 minutes to Jannowitz Brücke; or to Prinzen Strasse, and then street-cars Nos. 34, 35, 36, 41 to the steamer.

Trains leave Berlin for Grünau on the Stadtbahn every half-hour. From the Zoo the trip takes one hour, trains leaving 28min. before and 2min. past each full hour. Change of cars is in some cases necessary at Johannisthal.

The American Consulate-General and the office of the Chicago Daily News have been placed in possession of circulars this week concerning a newly-formed organization, the "American Embassy Association," recently founded by a number of prominent Americans with the object of promoting and encouraging the acquisition by the United States of permanent homes for its ambassadors abroad.

This subject has long been one of burning interest to Americans in Berlin, and it is safe to say that nowhere will the doings of the Association be watched with keener interest than among the sons and daughters of Uncle Sam exiled in this city. The circulars which have reached Berlin represent in part an invitation by the Association to its First Complimentary Banquet, which is to be held at the Hotel Cecil in London on July 7, and to which all male travelling American citizens, over 30 years of age, who happen to be in London at that time have been cordially invited.

None but the very rich, the circular explains, can afford to pay the rentals of homes suitable to the dignity of an American ambassador. The American democratic spirit and the American national pride demand that such a condition of affairs be terminated. None realise this fact better than Americans travelling in Europe, and it is for this reason that their co-operation in the work of the association is especially desired.

The banquet is being given entirely at the expense of the Association; subscriptions are neither solicited nor desired. The whole idea of the function is to bring together a number of representative Americans and concentrate public sentiment on the objects of the association. These objects will be amplified in addresses in the course of the dinner by prominent American speakers.

The popular protest against the Americanisation of the Berlin Royal Opera is beginning to have its effect—at any rate in one direction.

It seems that Beatrice Lauer-Cottlar, a soprano who made such an impression as Fidelio at the Berlin Royal Opera in May that she has since been asked to sign a contract, is simply another unit in the grand army of American singers who are taking possession of the Royal Opera House, Berlin. She is to appear next season in leading Wagnerian rôles.

This American singer, who came to Berlin as a "guest" from the Strasburg opera, has lived many years in Vienna, and speaks German almost perfectly, with a slight Austrian accent. Her German is such that no one at the opera house suspected her American origin.

When the contract came to be signed, the soprano was obliged, however, to drop her somewhat exaggerated fears and plead guilty to being an American.

The exclamations of the Intendanz officials at this awful revelation are unrecorded, except for a classic bon mot on the part of Dr. von Strauss, who observed that there was only one thing that the Royal Opera now needed, and that was an am-rikanisch-Souffleusin!

Simplicissimus lately dealt with this subject in a clever cartoon, which showed the members of the Opera House orchestra all as Comanche Indians, in full native attire, the conductor beating time with a tomahawk.

In a recent performance of "Die Huguenotten" at the Berlin Royal Opera, three Americans filled the three leading rôles.

With a view to shortening the morning service at the American Church during the warm weather, its order has been re-arranged by Dr. Hall, the Minister in Charge.

The Sunday School services are still being carried on, and will be so long as sufficient children remain in Berlin to justify continuance. The afternoon service has been discontinued for the summer months as usual.

Mrs. Chas. H. Whitacre and her daughters, and Mrs. S. Harlow, Mrs. Whitacre's mother, have left Zehlendorf for Dresden, where they will make a short visit before going on to Holland for the holidays.

Frau Professor A. Jäger, of the Manhattan School of Music, Brooklyn, N.Y., while on her way to her villa in Hallstatt, Austria, spent a few days in Berlin visiting her former pupil, Miss Jeanette Allen, of the Komische Oper, who has recently made such a success in "Carmen" and "Tosca." Frau Professor Jäger was accompanied by some of her American pupils.

Mme. Kirsinger, of Kurfürstendamm 242, is suffering with an attack of asthma. Mme. Kirsinger is well known in Berlin as a generous patroness of all young artists and musicians, Americans especially included.

Mrs. Daisy Humphrey, of New York, is in Berlin on a visit to Mrs. F. W. King, of Landshuter Str. 7. Mrs. Humphreys arrived on Wednesday morning by the belated "Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse."

Miss Stella Deakin, of Melbourne, Australia, daughter of the Hon. Alfred Deakin, the well known Australian Premier, has come to take a course in chemistry at Berlin University.

Miss Hunt, of Kleist Strasse 11, returned to Berlin on Tuesday from her three weeks' rest at Misdroy on the Baltic. Later in the summer she expects to take a fortnight's further holiday in the mountains.

Miss Caroline V. Kerr, who has been representing the Chicago Musical Leader in London during the season, is expected to return at the end of this week to Berlin, after a tour in Holland.

Halifax (N.S.), July 3.

The United Miners' Union of America announces that on Tuesday next it will call out the 7,000 men who are employed in the mines of the Dominion Coal Company and proclaim a general strike, unless in the interval the Company decide to send representatives to the conference which takes place on Monday. The Dominion Company have been prepared for trouble with their men for some months past, and the entire area of their property has been surrounded by a zereba, whose chief defence consists of a "live" electric cable strung round the entire fence and charged with a current of 5,000 volts. If any attempt is made to carry the barricade by storm there are certain to be frightful scenes of carnage.

EUROPEANS IN PERSIA THREATENED WITH PERIL.

Teheran, July 3.
The bazaars have been occupied by military, who threatened to open them by force if they were not voluntarily opened the next day. The Government have issued a decree to the following effect: "The Shah gave the country a Constitution, but the enemies of the Constitution have brought foreign robbers into the land—Georgians, Caucasians, and Armenians—who want to throw it into anarchy. They are advancing from all sides against Teheran. The Government will defend the city and its inhabitants, and punish every one who assists the revolutionaries. For that reason military law has been set up. Every attempt at insurrection will be nipped in the bud. The Government disclaims responsibility for what may happen." This decree means danger for the European inhabitants.

The death of Mr. Edward M. Quinby, of Pittsburg, Pa., U.S.A., whose obituary announcement we publish today, is a personal loss to the Anglo-American community in Dresden of which he was one of the most popular and highly respected members. Mr. Quinby's connection with Dresden commenced some six or seven years ago, and he became a member of the Anglo-American Club in May, 1902. Three years later he assumed the duties of Honorary Secretary to the Club, and thus came into personal touch with large numbers of English and American gentlemen resident in or visiting this city. At the time of his death Mr. Quinby was on the committee of the Club, and the sad news has come as a shock to his colleagues and numerous friends.

Mr. Quinby succumbed on Friday at 3 p.m. in Hofrat Dr. Haenel's clinic in Dresden-Neustadt, following an operation. The enquiries which reached our office yesterday from friends of the deceased made it clear that this sad event was totally unexpected. As stated in the announcement, the interment will take place on Tuesday next at the Trinitatis cemetery, Dresden-A., where funeral services will be held at 3 p.m.

Consul-General and Mrs. T. St. John Gaffney will give a large dinner party at the American Consulate-General tomorrow (Monday) evening, in celebration of Independence Day.

Mrs. G. Whitacre has arrived in Dresden from Berlin accompanied by her daughter and her mother, Mrs. Harlow. They are making a short stay at Miss Ford's, Werder Strasse 9, before proceeding to Holland to spend a vacation.

Special services will be held at the American Church of St. John today (Sunday) with music and an address appropriate to the occasion of Independence Day.

At the Scots' Church the morning service at 11 o'clock will be appropriate to the celebration of Independence Day by the United States. The Minister Resident, Rev. T. H. Wright, will preach on "The Burning Bush," the motto of the Church of Scotland. The evening one hour service at 6 o'clock will be conducted by the Rev. J. C. Milne, M.A., Parish Minister of Cramond, Edinburgh, and formerly in temporary charge of the Scots' Church in Dresden.

Arrivals at Bad Kreuznach up to date number 5,572; and at Bad Ems up to July 1st, 8,744. At both these famous resorts the Anglo-American element is greatly in evidence this year.

King Friedrich August, in the course of his country tour last week, paid a visit to Warmbad-Wolkenstein, where, in spite of the unpropitious weather, His Majesty met with an enthusiastic reception from the inhabitants. The King was accompanied by several officers of his personal suite and by a number of high civilian officials. The reception arrangements were appropriate and complete. Veteran societies and gaily attired school children lined the approaches; a guard of honour of young ladies carrying garlands of roses were at the entrance of the Villa "Daheim," where the King alighted. His Majesty was received by Dr. Glass and Herr Uhlig, and on entering the Villa by Frau Uhlig and her little 4-year old daughter. The latter offered to his Majesty a bouquet of wild flowers, which was graciously accepted. Luncheon followed, enlivened by the music of the Marienberg band, conducted by Musikdirektor Kaiser.

The guards in the city today are furnished by the Schützen regiment No. 108, whose band plays about 12.30 p.m. in the Neustadt.

Died on Friday, July 2nd,

Mr. Edward M. Quinby.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. on Tuesday, July 6th, at the Trinitatis cemetery
