

CLASS X.

- | | |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 293. BARK & WARBURG, Gothenburg.—Doors, window frame with wainscoting, in-laid floor, joinery work. 294. CELSING, v. L. G. Hellefors, Sudermannia.—Gas welding furnaces, for gas from coal or peat. 295. GEFLE PROVINCIAL LOCAL COMMITTEE, Gefle.—Model of a roof formed of shingles. 296. KLEMMING, C. Stockholm.—Water-closet. 297. KYLBERG, J. Sätenäs, Westgothland.—Draining tiles. | 301. MARINO, J. Stockholm.—Water-closet; model of a binn for sweepings, with conveniences. 302. NABSTEDT, H. Gothenburg.—Water-closets. 303. RINGNÉR, A. Gothenburg.—Glazed porcelain stoves. 306. ÅKERLIND, O. H. Stockholm.—Glazed porcelain stoves. 310. LINDSKOG, S. & FRYCKHOLM, P. B. Gothenburg.—Water-closet. 310a. CRONEBERG, W. Elfsbacka Iron Works, Wermland.—Shingles, roof of shingles. |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|

CLASS XI.

Sub-Class C.

- | | |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 311. ANKARCROMA, J. Husqvarna, Smaland.—Rifled gun, adopted in 1860 for the Swedish army, adapted for ranges between 600 and 4,000 feet. 312. CELSING, L. G. v. Hellefors, Sudermannia.—Five-pounder rifled cannon, invented by C. Engström, R.S.N. ; grenade. 313. EKMAN, C. Finspong, Ostgothland.—Breech-loading cannon, invented by C. Engström, R.S.N. ; six-pounder field cannon. 315. MARÉ, A. DE, Aukarsrum, Calmar.—Bombs. | 316. SASSE, E. Carlskrona.—Models for cannon foundries of breech-loading and other cannon, projectiles for rifled bore. 317. STOCKENSTRÖM, A. v. Åker, Sudermannia.—Rifled breech-loading field cannon, with suitable conical ball. 318. SVENGREN, J. Eskilstuna.—Sword-blades. 321. CARL GUSTAFFS STAD GUN FACTORY, Eskilstuna.—Infantry rifles. |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|

CLASS XII.

Sub-Class A.

323. GRÖNDAHL, C. E. M. Stockholm.—Drawing and model of a ship.

Sub-Class C.

326. FURUDAL IRON WORKS, Dalecarlia.—Chains and chain-cables of iron.
327. SÖDERFORSS IRON WORKS, Upland.—Anchor.

CLASS XIII.

- | | |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------|
| 331. BYSTRÖM, O. F. Stockholm.—Hydro-pyrometer, for measuring high temperatures in furnaces. | 332. HULTGREN, F. A. Stockholm.—Hydro-meter. |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------|