

Handwritten text in a cursive script, possibly a shorthand or a specific dialect, arranged in a grid pattern. The text is written in red ink on a yellowish paper background. The grid consists of approximately 8 rows and 4 columns of characters. The characters are stylized and repetitive, suggesting a systematic notation or code. The first row contains two distinct characters, while the subsequent rows contain more complex, multi-part symbols. The overall layout is organized and consistent across the page.