

What this thief steals is never recovered

Property burned up in a fire ceases to work for its owner or for civilization. It is not just transferred from one person to another. It is utterly destroyed.

Insurance, of course, recompenses the owner of the burned property. But insurance cannot restore to the world what fire takes away.

The Hartford Fire Insurance Company is doing its utmost to stop the activities of this greatest thief in the world. It provides sound and complete insurance. Behind each policy is a record, extending back more than a century, of prompt payment of every honest loss. It has in every community a competent and experienced agent who will gladly advise any property-owner in any matter pertaining to insurance or fire prevention.

And in addition, it maintains the Hartford Corps of Fire Prevention Engineers whose services in preventing fire are available to large property owners free of charge.
