This stately 18th century house near London was a progenitor of our Colonial architecture. Like most of the houses of its period, it was roofed with shingle tiles. If you are planning a home in the Colonial manner, your architect will tell you that such tiles are the authentic roof for it. And also that IMPERIAL Hand Made Shingle Tiles best reproduce the mellow tones and weathered texture of those laid many generations ago on England's Georgian homes. The correct tile roof for every form of architecture is obtainable in IMPERIAL Tiles.
