

been victorious all along the line. It is only necessary to keep the citizen awake and receptive, he must also receive explanations and exhortations in order to remain capable of judging achievements and observing differences of quality, so that he may always demand the best possible of himself and others. In the interests of popular economy, attempts are made to develop and heighten the people's powers of understanding and judgment, export trade demands only the best, which can only be produced by progressive work of hand and brain.

The propaganda drum wakes everybody up, like a hammer the strokes of which banish slumber, and demonstrates the motto of the Duce, the warder of the fascist way of life:

„We are against an easy life!“

Trans. by E. T. Scheffauer.

Italian Traffic Posters and Post Cards