

EWALD

Hoinkis

BERLIN

The problem of natural colour photography is already an old one, is as old indeed as the optical picture itself because its invention originated in the wish to capture nature's colours. This question was, as we know, already taken up by Leonardo da Vinci. "Direct" colour photo-