

convincingly the curious logic of sleep and the instinctive quality of dreams. It is not invented and that is why it is so convincing. Rössing, a man of the present day, dreams dreams of the past. He dreams of the mysterious and the incomprehensible. It is the melancholy of the complete realization of the incomprehensible.

Transl. by W. L. Campbell

From "The German Peasants' War"

Der Friedensengel

KARL RÖSSING

The Angel of Peace