

AT THE THIRD STROKE

IT WILL BE 8 O'CLOCK
PRECISELY

You can get the correct time at any moment of the day or night by telephoning to the Speaking Clock. The Post Office Speaking Clock is an electro-mechanical device which announces the time to one-tenth of a second every ten seconds. Subscribers in London with a dial telephone with letters as well as figures dial "T+M". Other subscribers and call-office users will be connected if they call the exchange and ask for the Speaking Clock. The charge is the same as for an ordinary call to Central London.
