

mont in U. S. A. He makes exclusive use of etching and lithography, and his highly excellent work proves convincingly how both these processes are peculiarly suited to designing advertisements for industrial purposes.

Opportunity was given to this artist by Messrs Alley & Richards Company whose art director is Deane Uptegrove, of designing a series of large scale lithographic pictures for the U. S. Pipe and Foundry Company, whilst the subjects of his most impressive etchings are generally scenes from the lives of industrial workers showing the dangers of their calling. The peculiar charm and value

Lithography

