

If we cast a critical glance at the posters of Europe we note the interesting fact that the poster is obviously coming into its own again today and is finding greater appreciation after certain fitful periods of diminishing popularity. Its use has accordingly increased in proportion. An evidence of this is the vigorous activity displayed by those small countries which hitherto produced few posters of any significance

Strumpfplakate
Posters for stockings