

Mural painting for an exhibition of Italian products

Some time ago representative examples of Prof. Roveroni's work were once published in this journal. He is not only an advertising artist of repute but he has made his mark in exhibition planning in which he is actively engaged. The numerous exhibition buildings he has created are of real architectural interest and his interior decoration is excellent. The lines of his buildings are clear and harmonious, whilst not infrequently some unusually bold experiment in perspective makes for variety. Prof. Roveroni's striking mural pictures are proofs of his definite talent for de-
