

for two art institutes engaged in designing stage costumes. Publicity finally attracted him and he was admitted as a student to the Industrial Art School in the Castello Sforzesco at Milan. On completing his course of study he obtained work in the Milan branch of Erwin Wasey & Co., American Advertising Agents where he had ample opportunity of widening his outlook and of familiarising himself with the different trends and tasks of

The work of this young Italian artist reveals his gift for producing harmonious pictorial compositions, a talent acquired after years of experience. Carlo Dinelli who is a native of Ancona began his career as a designer of pictorial postcards and fashion figurines. He then worked

