to outrival Paris as a centre of fashion, for Paris had notably declined in this respect after the Revolution of 1789. It was characteristic of England that a German artist was commissioned to undertake the task. Nicolaus Heideloff was born at Stuttgart about 1761. He attended the Karl School in Solitude Castle at the same time as Schiller, that is, from 1772 to 1784 when Duke Karl Eugen of Württemberg sent him to Paris to continue
