all the qualities needful to give a room an attractive, opulent and festive atmosphere. That this is today a productive and thankful field of work for such a sculptor is evidenced by Hitzberger's carvings in the Reich Air Ministry. His reliefs reveal a personal note and masterly style. He arranges his panels with forceful rhythm. The boldly carved outlines give an amazing effect of depth to the surface. Despite the wide sweep of his line-drawings Hitzberger has in addition skilfully expressed in some of his masterpieces—to mention only his "Wild Swan", "The wild Boars" and the "Pair of Herrons"—the delicate beauty of feathers, fur or leaves. Hitzberger is particularly happy in his choice of subjects which are
