produced during the last few decades. Notable German advertising artists are worthily represented here in a goodly number of posters not to mention the work of the rising generation of artists who are gaining practical experience in the Meinl Studio. Here too is a collection of old prints dating from the early days of the Firm's existence and even before that time in so far as they are connected with the character of the business. Interesting, for instance, is the fine old porcelain including cups made in famous factories. Coffee-grinders dating from the Baroque,
