

A trompe l'œil panel is painted in one corner of the library in the new house of the Prince and Princess Jean Louis de Faucigny-Lucinge in the rue de Berri.

IN PARIS

The panels of the master bedroom in the Rue de Berri—the heraldic devices of the Faucigny-Lucinge family, entwined with streamers and white plaster hands.

In the baby's room, at Mme. de Yturbe's, an antique wickerwork cradle is guarded by crisp white tulle curtains falling from a crown, and the light blue door is quilted.

