

Robert Henry has not chosen an exactly simple subject for his activity as an advertising artist. True, fashion in general offers a graphic artist wide and varied scope for his talent but when it comes to dealing with the very necessary but somewhat delicate matter of underwear he must perforce confine himself to essentials in his drawings and avoid all decorative accessories. The idea is not so much to attract customers and women in particular by the fascinating

SCHAUFENSTERPLAKATE
SHOP WINDOW POSTERS

Illustrations from a prospectus