

to our readers is undoubtedly one of those promising young geniuses who if her already highly developed gifts continue to be carefully cultivated will certainly be successful in her career. She received a thorough training at the Bavarian State School of Photography and gained her apprentice's certificate. She recently started independent work. Apart from her technical ability Ingeborg Hoppe possesses the gift of grasping essentials, a quality that would appear to ensure her success in commercial photography.

Translated by Flora Salmond-Volkman

35