

PASSANTEN-GESPRÄCHE IN NEW YORK

(Times Square)

... Beautiful, yeah, but dumb ...
... Nope, I says, to him, I'm not that kind of a girl ...
... blue with white dots, too cute for words ...
... Well, Goldstein, How's business?
... Rotten!
... Listen, Rose, let's have a soda ...
... you got telephone, Baby?
... No money in that game, no sir ...
... Gee whiz, hot shit, ain't she?
... Yep, she's some kid ... Body by Fisher ...
... genuine prewar stuff, selling retail at 25 Dollars, but to you ...
... Clara Bow? I adore her ...
... Hello Benny! Where 've you been all these years ... well, well, well ...
... so I changed my mind, called him up and ...
... Now, you take Steel, for instance. If I would have held that stock ...
... Hot show, plenty of meat ...
... Yeah, he's got a friend in Wall Street ... right in the know ... inside dope ...
... she's out for cash, believe me, but with them hips ...
... Too bad, ain't it?
... Aw hell ...
... right around the corner, all the booze you want ...
... None of your business, sir! ...
... so he got fresh, the big stiff, and I says to him, Listen, I says ...
... 40 bucks a week and the wife sick in the hospital ...
... she smells but anyway ...
... no money in the art game ...
... so he took me to the "Follies" ... yeah, big Packard ... we danced till three,
and then ...
... Can you imagine? Calling me an old sucker! Can you ...
... and Gentlemen! Here's a bargain, an exceptional offer, your last chance ...
... So this is Times Square! Well, Mama, we'll tell the folks back home ...
... sure fire investment, bringing 7 percent interest, guaranteed by ...
... she's a good girl, that's the trouble ...

TELEGRAMME:
"OTELANCAST"

LANCASTER HOTEL

7, RUE DE BERRI
PARIS

ERSTKLASSIG