

Handwritten text at the top of the page, likely a title or header, appearing as bleed-through from the reverse side.

Excursion Process

Main body of handwritten text, possibly a preface or introductory section, containing several lines of script.

Second section of handwritten text, continuing the narrative or providing further details.

Text located below the emblem, likely a signature or a short concluding statement.

Final line of text at the bottom of the page, possibly a date or a reference number.